Irish Reunion Negotiations Gain Headway

U.S. Reported Sharing In Talks of Possible Defence of Island

Britain Takes Part

By JOSEPH DENNIGAN
Canadian Press Correspondent
DUBLIN—Authoritative quarters declined comment today on reports current here that negotiations are under way to solve the Irish partition problem.

The reports revived suggestions aired last year during the Anglo-Irish trade talks that a solution might be found in a federal government at Dublin, with Northern Ireland retaining its own government.

One report said a solution might include an agreement permitting United States forces to use Eire territory in wartime if the United States should be involved. Authoritative quarters also declined to discuss this because no one was willing to predict future developments.

The feeling, however, is that Irish unity is a factor of supreme importance to America as well as to Great Britain. Aerial transport is rapidly making Ireland strategically an island off the American coast just as much as off the European coast.

Consequently some people feel a solution would be a joint Anglo-American guarantee of Ireland's security.

VALERIA TO VISIT U.S.

LONDON (CP-Havas) — A Dublin dispatch to the Sunday Times of London, Independent, reported important negotiations were now going on among Washington, Dublin, Belfast and London toward bringing about a united Ireland, which would be protected by United States warships and troops in time of war.

The visit to Washington next month of Prime Minister de Valera of Eire would play a capital role in the negotiations, the dispatch said. President Roosevelt was described as eager to see the question settled by achievement of Irish unity.

"One report is that if such a solution could be reached for a united Ireland maintaining external association with the British Empire the United States armed forces should by treaty be given certain accommodation in time of war," the dispatch said.

In exchange for Anglo-American guarantees of security, Ireland would open its ports to United States warships and merchant vessels and its territory to American troops, it added.

Second Tallest Man Married

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—Clifford Thompson, 34, Scandinavia, Wis., who claimed to be the second tallest man in the world, and Mary Bars, 32, Milwaukee, were wed here yesterday. Thompson is eight feet, seven inches tall and weighs 460 pounds. His bride is five feet, five inches tall. They met a year ago while both were working for a circus.

Thompson claims he is out-gained only by Robert Wadlow, Alton, Ill., whose height is eight feet, eight and a quarter inches. Still growing at 21, Wadlow weighs 491 pounds.

Roosevelt Plans Changes in U.S. As Europe Moves

Studies New Policy Immediately On Return to Washington

Georgia Holiday Ends

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt returned to Washington from a southern vacation today and before leaving his train received Secretary of State Cordell Hull for a discussion of the troubled European situation. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau also joined in the conference.

The President's special train left Warm Springs, Ga., late yesterday, when he said, in a smiling farewell from the rear platform to a depot crowd: "I'll be back in the fall if we don't have a war."

Mr. Roosevelt a few moments before had made the same qualification about a return trip to Georgia in shaking hands at the train ramp with Fred Bots, a Warm Springs Foundation official.

"Well, so long Fred, I'll be back Thanksgiving—with provisions," he told Bots.

That Mr. Roosevelt was greatly concerned over latest developments abroad was made plain to newspapermen on several occasions. He was represented as being greatly disturbed over prospects if the Nazi-Fascist axis continues to absorb small independent nations into its economic orbit.

At the week-end a White House source represented Mr. Roosevelt as feeling the American people may have to choose soon between giving up all world trade, lowering the American wage-hour standards or adopting a national policy of subsidizing exports.

South Africa Mayor Bitter Against Hitler

Takes Hertzog to Task For His Attitude Toward Criticism

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (CP-Reuters) — James Maclean, mayor of Port Elizabeth, took Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog to task today in replying to the statesman's criticism of "offensive" terms the mayor applied to Chancellor Hitler in a public address.

The mayor referred to Hitler as a "convalescent man" and an "Austrian corporal." He admitted in his reply he had resorted to somewhat violent terms but added:

"When I recall the brutal murder of Dollfuss, the cruel imprisonment of Schuschnigg and the way Benes was hounded out of his country, I wonder whether you, sir, as head of a state protected by the British navy, are not being more complacent than you ought to be with a representative of a regime which apparently delights in treating prime ministers in this fashion."

The royal party went to Volo from Larissa, where it had spent last night in a railroad car on a siding.

SWEDEN TO FIGHT IF THREATENED

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Defence Minister Per-Edvin Skoeld today served notice on European powers with territorial ambitions that Sweden "will not allow herself to be sacrificed."

"Any idea that Sweden has no possibility of maintaining her independence and the freedom of her people is wrong," the minister said in a speech at Malmoe.

In what was interpreted as a reference to Germany, Skoeld added:

"If a foreign power had intentions of destroying that independence, Sweden's chance of saving herself at least would be as great as the risk of being deleted from the map of Europe."

Britain May Pledge Greece, Turkey Aid

Offer to Guarantee Their Independence Reported; British Warships Move

LONDON (AP) — The British cabinet was reported reliably today to have decided to offer to guarantee the independence of Greece and Turkey. The announcement may be made by Mr. Chamberlain to the House of Commons Thursday.

Earlier Prime Minister Chamberlain was said to have told Italy any attempt to seize the strategic Greek-owned island of Corfu might be interpreted by Great Britain as an invitation to war.

The cabinet meeting coincided with movements of British warships in the Mediterranean.

While the cabinet met, the Admiralty confirmed that all British warships had been ordered to leave Italian ports. However, there was no confirmation of reports the vessels were en route to Greek ports.

It was explained in informed quarters that Britain's willingness to guarantee the independence of Greece and Turkey was based on a unanimous belief of the Committee of Imperial Defence that those countries are vital to the safety of British and French empire routes in the Mediterranean.

Issuance of fleet orders at Malta and the sailing of the battleship Malaya from Mentone, France, indicated to some observers that Britain already might be preparing to protect the Greek coast. All British naval officers on holiday in Tangier, Morocco, were ordered by telegraph to return to their ships immediately.

A Greek spokesman here said Britain had not been asked to send ships to protect Greek ports.

Mr. Chamberlain's message to Premier Mussolini, said to have been conveyed by the Earl of Perth, British ambassador in Rome, was reported to be that Britain would "consider any attempt to seize Corfu as a casus belli (cause for war)."

At the same time rumors that Britain intended to occupy Corfu, which is off the southern tip of Albania and guards the gateway to the Adriatic, were denied.

Display of Force By Britain and France Considered

Demonstration in Mediterranean Seen As Possible Strategy

Armies and Navies

By CHARLES FOLTZ
Associated Press Foreign Staff
PARIS (AP) — France and Great Britain were reported today to be considering joint military and naval demonstrations to back up their eastern European allies against further Italian-German expansion.

A two-hour extraordinary meeting of the French Defence Council on Easter Day, when Premier Edouard Daladier consulted commanders of the French army, sea and air forces was said by informed sources to have been concerned with such demonstrations.

There was no hint in the press or official quarters as to what form such measures might take. It was said the defence chiefs met to plan "preparations for all eventualities" and that "this is not the time for statements but for military measures to complete preparations."

The Paris newspaper L'Epoque cautiously declared "it is not forbidden to suppose that the government considered measures of military precaution to discourage new surprises."

French observers indicated British and French warships might "go calling" in Greek waters if Athens reported Italian pressure increased following Premier Mussolini's occupation of Albania.

Duce's New Chiefs In Albania Give Loyalty Pledge

Cabinet Set Up
By Italy Broadcasts
To Both Countries

TIRANA (AP)—The provisional Albanian government today pledged the loyalty of the Albanian people to Premier Mussolini and formally accepted Italian rule on their behalf.

The president and secretary of the administrative committee broadcast loyalty addresses to Albanians and to Italy. Their speeches were relayed over all Italian radio stations.

Contrary to expectations in Tirana, Mussolini had not arrived in time for the broadcast and it was doubted he would come today.

The "appeal" of Albanian leaders to Mussolini to permit them to found an Albanian Fascist Party also was read over the radio.

"We express our thanks for your (Mussolini's) sacrifices, which have saved the Albanian people from so many dangers," the appeal said.

The addresses came as crowds gathered in the main square of this fallen Albanian capital in expectation of a broadcast by Mussolini. The president of the provisional government committee set up by the Italians spoke in Albanian and the secretary in Italian. The broadcast opened with the Albanian national anthem and the Fascist hymn.

"For the past 26 years we have had a bad administration in Albania and have shown that we have been incapable of governing ourselves," said the president.

"This state of things led us to peril—that of Albanian disunity. Our sole hope was the beloved and genial person of Il Duce, who has made moral and material sacrifices for us and has liberated Albania from her peril.

"The army which comes today is an army sent by Il Duce and it comes as a friend, not as an enemy."

OUT OF SLAVERY

Read over the radio as coming from "Notables of Tirana" to Mussolini, the appeal said Italian troops had liberated Tirana from "base slavery."

Many thought there would be an Italian governor-general, or possibly a viceroy as in Ethiopia, and that the 1,000,000 inhabitants of this mountainous land of 10,629 square miles would be given a national assembly to make decisions where there was no chance of conflict with Fascist policy.

(The Albanian minister of Bulgaria telegraphed to Mussolini yesterday an expression of hope that some degree of Albanian independence would be preserved.)

TROOP REPORTS SPREAD TO SCARE

NEW YORK—Special dispatch to the Wall Street Journal from G. V. Ormsby, its London correspondent, today says:

"Rumors continue to circulate of troop movements in Germany. These rumors, however, are probably spread deliberately by Germany in order to increase anxiety among the democracies and to deter any other adherents to a democratic pact.

"On the other hand, there is always the possibility of some fresh coup by Hitler as the next move in the Berlin-Rome aggression."

SEATTLE (AP)—Warning the United States should keep out of war, Rt. Rev. Many of the so-called democratic nations, he said, are "wolves in sheep's clothing."

He warned that "we are today on the brink of war because many of our leaders are unable to use fundamental principles of justice and morality, are again, as did our leaders a quarter century ago, mouthing euphemistic phrases and uttering vapid epiphetes that catch and inflame the unthinking."

British Press Urges Speed

Preparation for Defence and Strong
Stand Proposed

LONDON (CP-Havas)—Great Britain now understands its own fate is threatened by the Rome-Berlin axis, the London Daily Telegraph, Conservative, said today.

"The ministers can be under no misapprehension as to the depth to which public opinion in this country has been stirred," the editorial declared.

"Those who have been generously determined to put the most favorable construction on acts which were obviously most exceptional are now left with no room for any comforting illusions."

"It is not the smart of grievances but the sheer lust of aggression which actuates the totalitarian powers. . . . It now becomes as clear as daylight that all the aggressive moves are part of a carefully-planned design for building up an irresistible combination on the international chessboard."

"On its success or failure may depend not only the future of Europe and of democracy, but of the British Empire."

"The ministers can confidently rely on full support of the nation in whatever action they may deem necessary to take to vindicate the claim of Europe to live in peace and security."

The London Daily Express, Independent, said:

"In Britain the pressing necessity is preparation for war, for by such preparations we may find peace. It is only by being strong whenever the threat comes that we can hope to give guarantees of peace to our people, and no nation in the world is in a better position to make herself strong in arms than Britain."

QUICK ACTION

The Daily Herald, Labor, said: "At last the democracies are making their policy consistent with what is required by the dangers in which they stand. But a realistic appreciation of the dangers is not enough. There must be speed, and still more speed, in meeting them."

"Therefore, as Britain acted in eastern Europe with the Anglo-Polish agreement, so she must now act in the Balkans, in co-operation with all willing nations."

"But in the name of peace let that co-operation be broadly based. With France we must go hand in hand. Without Russia no policy can be complete. Defence pacts with individual nations are stop-gaps. It is a full system of collective security alone that guarantees peace."

The News Chronicle, Liberal: "The task of creating and cementing an alliance with Russia should now be made the first imperative duty of the British Government. Delay will be unforgivable."

70-Year Life Span Predicted By 1980

NEW YORK—The average man of the World of Tomorrow may live 70 years or possibly longer. This length of life for citizens of 1980 is predicted by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company here. With two World's Fairs scheduled this year, the statisticians have been checking previous ones as mile-stones of American longevity.

First milestone, the Centennial Exposition of 1876, showed an average length of life among white males of almost 42 years. Between then and the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893 there was little change, in spite of remarkable advances made in medical science during the intervening period. This is explained by the lag between discoveries and their practical application.

By the time of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904, however, a gain of almost six years was made, bringing the expectation-of-life at birth of a white male to 48.2 years. By the time of the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915 the expectation of life was 53.0 years. The 60-year mark was passed by the time of the Century of Progress Exposition in 1933-34. Since then, bringing the record up-to-date, it is estimated that an additional year has been gained, bringing the figure finally to 61.5 years for a white male and 65.2 for a white female. The 70-year mark for average—not exceptional—length of life is expected to be reached by 1980.

The New York World's Fair of 1939, the statisticians point out, by dedicating a building to medicine and public health is the first such fair to feature the extraordinary advances in the life and health of the people which are marked by the milestones of longevity recorded.

Holland Widens Defence Measures

LONDON (CP-Havas)—The Netherlands has taken drastic precautions against armed invasion, the Amsterdam correspondent of the London Daily Express, Independent, reported today.

The dispatch said the border districts to a depth of more than 30 miles are under armed control, all bridges are mined, all army and navy Easter leaves were cancelled and Netherlands authorities are ready to open the dikes and flood one-third of the country, including Amsterdam, Rotterdam and The Hague, within a few hours after an invasion.

Franco Stated In Secret Pact

French Writer Says Land
And Air Bases Given
Italy and Germany

PARIS (AP)—Genevieve Tabouis, writing in L'Oeuvre, today turned French attention toward Spain, where she said General Franco had signed a secret military agreement with Germany, Italy and Japan.

She said the secret agreement was signed Friday, April 7, in Burgos, Spain, and provided that:

1. For 18 months Spain places all her air and naval bases at the disposition of the axis powers.

2. Germany and Italy guarantee to finance the building of a line of fortifications behind the strategic passes of the Pyrenees Mountains (at the French-Spanish border).

3. Germany, Italy and Japan guarantee to defend Spanish territory against all aggression by a third power and will support General Franco in his "national territorial demands."

That last phrase, Mme. Tabouis said, might refer to Britain's Gibraltar at the entrance to the Mediterranean.

The commentator Pertinax, however, dismissed Nationalist Spain's potential threat to France with a single sentence:

"Franco can no longer doubt that the least movement of hostility on his part will mean the loss of Spanish Morocco."

The sole land frontier of Spanish Morocco, apart from the international zone of Tangier, is with French Morocco, the strong central key of the whole French North African defence system.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN SOUTH CHINA

Both Defenders and Japanese Claim Victories
In Encounters

SHANGHAI (AP)—Strategic victories were claimed by both Chinese and Japanese Monday after heavy fighting in Kiangsi Province, southern China.

The Chinese reported they had stopped a Japanese advance near Wuning, 70 miles northwest of Nanchang, the provincial capital, and by counter-attacks along the Nanchang-Changsha highway, had recaptured Kaaan, which the invaders occupied a week ago at great cost.

The invaders said their forces southwest of Nanchang had surrounded several Chinese detachments. Seven hundred Chinese were reported slain.

Throughout eastern Kiangsi Province, the Japanese said, the invaders won numerous isolated victories.

In northern Hunan, Chinese communiques said, the Japanese were hard pressed to hold Yochow, Yangtze River city.

5 INJURED IN ALBERTA CRASH

EDMONTON (CP)—Five Calgary persons were injured, two seriously, in an automobile accident six miles south of Edmonton, on the Calgary Trail last night.

Injured were: Stanley Savage, slight cuts on face; Mrs. Stanley Savage, wrenched knee, shock; Stephen Savage, three months old, slight scratches on body; J. Pinkert, deep cut on head; Mrs. J. Pinkert, collarbone fracture, lacerations on one ankle, shock.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinkert and Stephen Savage were reported by hospital officials as "progressing satisfactorily."

Royal Canadian Mounted police told newspapermen they believed the accident was caused by a blow-out just as the car, which Mr. Savage was driving, was passing another car. The car swerved on to the soft shoulder of the road, swung down into the ditch and turned over.

"It all happened so suddenly that I don't just know what happened," Mr. Savage said. "I think there was a motorcycle coming from the opposite direction and I swung back of the car. I was passing to let it by. And the first thing I knew we were upside down in the ditch."

Ottawa Gets Inside Story On Mr. King's Attack

Press Gallery Mistake
Thwarted Premier's
Hint to Britain

By NORMAN MACLEOD

OTTAWA—Harold Dingman of the House of Commons Press Gallery has become the first newspaperman in the history of Confederation to compel a public apology on the floor of Parliament from a Canadian Prime Minister.

The "inside" story of the Prime Minister's sensational attack on the Globe and Mail correspondent has now come out.

A short time after the Prime Minister made his attack, the Globe and Mail publisher (C. George McCullagh) was seen leading a procession consisting of his Ottawa correspondent in the direction of Mr. King's quarters. The sequel was the abject apology by Mr. King, an apology for which no precedent existed in Canadian Parliamentary history.

The question of absorbing interest in connection with the whole affair is why the Prime Minister became so irate at the omission of a few phrases which qualified his main statement of policy on the foreign situation? The background to an understanding of this question consists in knowledge of what transpired at the Liberal caucus of some days ago.

It is understood that at this gathering of the government supporters Mr. King declared with a good deal of vehemence that he would never support a British government headed by Duff Cooper or Winston Churchill. The belief of the caucus is, furthermore, that the Prime Minister was on the point of adding Anthony Eden's name as well. The reason for Mr. King's hostility to these British statesmen, so far as the government caucus deduced, lay in the fact that they were more likely than the present British Conservative government to precipitate the United Kingdom in hostilities.

In accordance with this declaration to caucus, Mr. King included in his speech on foreign affairs the words "regardless of what government or party may be in office, regardless of what its policy may be, regardless of what the issue itself may come to be." These words were intended by him to be interpreted in British circles as a warning that no British cabinet, irrespective of its composition, could count automatically on the support of the present Canadian administration. Consequently, they were important words. The quotation which the Prime Minister wrongly attributed to Mr. Dingman, but for which the Canadian Press was responsible, omitted them.

From this explanation, it follows that those who know the "inside" of the highly-interesting Dingman episode are disposed to attach some importance to it. They look upon it as a covert attempt by a Canadian Prime Minister to pass a hint to those in British politics, only to find himself thwarted in a most exasperating manner by a news-paper blunder.

NATIVE-SON OF NANAIMO PASSES

Funeral services for the late Noel V. Wenborn, 47, a native son of Nanaimo, who died following a heart attack in Fresno, California, last week, were conducted on Thursday last in the southern city, according to word received by relatives here today.

The second son of Robert Wenborn, marine machinist of long standing in Nanaimo, and Agnes E. Wenborn, eldest daughter of Alexander Shaw, minister, missionary and schoolteacher in the Nanaimo and Alberni districts, the deceased had lived in Victoria for several years.

He left a post on the Victoria Fire Department for overseas service with the Forestry Battalion in 1916, and returned to live with his parents at Stevenson, suffering from the effects of a gas attack.

About 1920 he went to Seattle and joined the White Truck Co., remaining with that firm in Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane until recently, when he was transferred to Fresno.

He is survived by the widow, the former Elizabeth McFarlane of Nanaimo, two sons, Robert Noel and John Calvin in Fresno; one daughter, Vivian Emily, in Victoria; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Wenborn, Stevenson, and two brothers, Ray and John, and two sisters, Mrs. J. P. Hooper and Marguerite Mitchell. Funeral services were conducted by the Masonic Order, and were followed by cremation.

VETERANS URGED TO BE READY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lieutenant-Governor Eric W. Hamber laid a memorial wreath on the Victory Square cenotaph Saturday night as Vancouver veterans' organizations paid tribute to Canada's war dead.

Rev. Major George Pringle conducted the cenotaph service. Later the organizations—the 72nd Battalion Seaforth Association, the Canadian Machine Gun Corps (overseas) Association, Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders Association, the 5th Battalion Association and the Canadian Overseas Engineers—held reunion dinners.

Brigadier-General J. A. Clark at the Seaforth dinner asked that sons of "well-to-do" men take military training.

Col. Hugh McL. Urquhart of Victoria asked the Queen's Own to "keep alive the three things prevalent among soldiers from 1914 to 1918—comradeship, friendship and the willingness to make sacrifice for what is just and right."

Col. J. P. Fell told the Canadian overseas engineers that "it will be nothing short of a miracle in the hands of Almighty God if war does not come in a very short time. What we have to do is man the home front."

MAY CHANGE DATE FOR INDIAN MEET

Alderman W. H. Davies, chairman of the Civic Celebrations Committee, stated today that he would seek the approval of his committee for the staging of Victoria's monster Indian regatta at the George on May 24 instead of May 27 so that the way would be cleared for Vancouver Island Indians to take part in the Vancouver Royal Visit celebrations program as well as the local meet.

Mr. Davies attended a meeting in Duncan which was attended by 90 representatives of Vancouver Island Indian tribes. J. T. Ball, Indian agent for Vancouver area, and the acting Indian agent at Duncan, was chairman.

This meeting was called for the purpose of learning whether the Indians wished to take part in the program in Vancouver or the local regatta. The Vancouver event calls for the Indians to be on the Capilano Reservation on May 27, which was the same date for the local meet. Only captains of boats, boat owners and chiefs of tribes were allowed to vote on the matter. With the exception of one canoe from the Nanaimo district and two others from the Quamichan Reserve, all voted in favor of attending the Victoria affair. These included the Malahat Indians, Cole Bay, West Saanich, Cooper Island, Chemainus, Songheeh and one other tribe.

GERMAN PROBLEM*Dominion May Find Itself
With Minority Trouble, Says Toronto Rabbi

TORONTO (CP) — Claiming there were 300,000 people of German origin in the three prairie provinces, "the largest non-British group in Canada," Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath warned Canadians in a sermon here last night to be on guard lest they wake up some morning to find we have "in Canada our own Sudeten problem." He added he did not conclude that all these Germans were pro-Nazi.

The Rabbi charged the "insidious encroachment of Nazi propaganda" as well as the shadow of dictatorship across the sea, was menacing freedom in Canada and the United States.

Between 1926 and 1936, the number of people of British origin in Saskatchewan decreased by 11,000, while those of German increased by almost 36,000, he said.

APPEAL TO VETERANS

SASKATOON (CP) — Walter B. Caswell, in an address Saturday night to war veterans celebrating the anniversary of the battle of Vimy Ridge, said Saskatchewan's German-speaking population would create a minority problem if strong steps to prevent it were not taken.

"It is time the people of Saskatchewan became aware of this situation," said Mr. Caswell, who is a Saskatchewan alderman, but stated he was speaking as a war veteran and not as a representative of the city.

He admonished the war veterans to do something about the German problem. "You can't maintain democracy by any weak-kneed policy," he said. "If these people do not want to be good Canadians and conform to the Canadian manner of living, then we don't want them here."

Mr. Caswell said the German population in Saskatchewan had increased from 95,000 in 1928 to 165,000 in 1936.

At the last census in 1931 there were 3,626 persons of German birth in British Columbia, and 6,034 persons of Italian birth.

Oxford Group Move Supported By M.P.'s

LONDON — It was revealed here today that 125 members of the British House of Commons, over 100 Oxford University men, and 16 bishops are supporting the Oxford Group's recent application for incorporation, not for profit. This fact came to light when the official parliamentary order paper announced that Sir Cooper Rawson will ask a question in the Commons in support of the application.

Sir Cooper Rawson, Conservative, who gained the greatest majority in Great Britain at the last general election, is to ask if the President of the Board of Trade has considered the application and the "petitions supporting the application signed by 125 M.P.'s of all parties, by many religious leaders, Lord Mayors, mayors, aldermen, councillors, and business and professional men throughout the country; and what decision he has arrived at?"

It is understood that among the signatories of the petitions mentioned in Sir Cooper's question are 110 representative Oxford men, including heads, professors, and fellows of Oxford colleges, 16 bishops of the Church of England, principal officials of the Nonconformist churches, and many trades union officials. Civic petitions have been sent from virtually every major city in England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland, as well as Dublin.

Greece May Sizzle
In War's Skillet

By MELANIE L. PFLAUM

ATHENS, Greece, looks remote on the map, but Greece is "in the middle" of the European war scare. Crete and some of the Ionian islands would immediately become important naval bases if war comes and both Britain and Italy would seek to use them. Corfu probably would be at once attacked by Italy.

That is why Greece is today a British "sphere of influence." It is the British who have kept King George in power. The king and Dictator Metaxas are said to be bitter enemies. But the king fears that without the military support of the dictator he would lose his throne, while Metaxas feels that without the king and the British there would be a revolution. So they get along as best they can.

WHISPER WHEN SAYING "METAXAS"

The name of Metaxas is mentioned, if at all, only in whispers. He is feared by all, hated by many. Critics are discouraged by Metaxas' whimsical habit of locking them up in cells filled with four feet of water, or causing less serious offenders to lie naked on blocks of ice.

Though British influence is still dominant in Greece, German commercial penetration is greater this year than ever. Germany buys Greek tobacco, olive oil and fruits. In return the Greeks get imitation wool sweaters, harmonicas, cheap watches, fountain pens, and the Tyrolean hats with which the Balkans have been flooded this year. You can map German commercial penetration into the Balkans by following the trail of these hats down the Danube.

If Greece is dragged into a war, it will be done by northern Europe, not by her traditional enemy, Turkey. Improvements of relations between Greece and Turkey is shown by the evident and sincere sorrow expressed in Greece at the death of Kemal Ataturk. The work of Kemal in wiping out ancient enmities was well known to Greeks.

In fact, in some ways Greece looks more like Turkey than Turkey itself. Ataturk did such a thorough job of modernizing in Istanbul that if it were not for the mosques and palaces one might take it for a European city. But in Crete, for example, peasant women almost always have a cloth or scarf drawn over the lower part of the face, and the men wear a sort of turban.

BORIS IS TRAIN FANCIER

Of all the Balkan countries, Bulgaria immediately impresses one as the most progressive. King Boris, whose hobby is railroading, and who likes to drive the engine of his own train, is apparently trying to modernize his country as fast as possible.

Bulgaria is the only Balkan country with a real minimum wage, a fairly high standard of living, and a thoroughly modern school system.

King Boris has a fine collection of all the latest types of locomotives, and a special strip of track on which to try their speed.

But this is one of the things you don't talk about. Bulgarians are sensitive about their king's hobby. In Rumania you do not not to discuss Madame Lupescu or Bessarabia. In Yugoslavia, Prince Paul's German leanings are not to be mentioned, nor is it well to discuss the fate of Czechoslovakia.

Ten thousand Yugoslavian students had been organized to fight for the Czechs, and the Yugoslavians see in the fate of Czechoslovakia a warning to themselves.

Thus it is well to travel in the Balkans with a sort of mental loose-leaf notebook containing topics not to be discussed. They range from those that will land you on the inside of a cell looking out to those that are merely unpleasant.

In Greece people find it unwise to discuss politics at all, and the only comment I could elicit from an Athenian student about King George was "Our king is not hated, but neither is he beloved." In a country where the government is threatened by possible revolution it is best to speak softly. In Greece there are two such possibilities.

There are the Republicans, followers of Venizelos. Many have been exiled to barren little islands of the Aegean, but each has a large and powerful family back in Greece waiting eagerly for the revolution. And Germany would like nothing better than a revolution in Greece that would oust the present government and put in one favorable to Germany.

expanded into a nation-wide party," the author writes, "no one could be better suited for the national leader who would some day be required than one who, though he had sprung from the humblest origins and had never lost contact or sympathy with the poor, possessed the external characteristics to which the country was accustomed of its rulers."

STAND ON WAR

Alluding to criticism levelled against Mr. MacDonald on his pacifist stand during the war, Lord Elton declares there was no doubt he had an intense emotional and rational hatred of war.

He was determined, however, not to let passion color or distort his judgement. "It was," the author maintains, "a source of genuine discomfort for him in war-time that so many of his supporters, like his opponents, had in fact become extremists for the duration." Intellectually MacDonald was a moderate with all the emotional equipment of a fanatic—and this was one of the periods when that essential paradox goes far to explain him."

Irish Rebels Warn
Eire Government

CORK, Eire (CP-Havas)—The Eire government was warned yesterday that if "at England's behest" it turned its guns against the outlawed Irish Republican Army, the I.R.A. "would strike back."

"As the question of the freedom and independence of Ireland is a matter between Ireland and England, the I.R.A. has decided not to wage war against brother Irishmen, but to transfer the seat of its operations to the heart of the British Empire," Thomas Mac Curtain—son of Thomas Mac Curtain, Lord Mayor of Cork, who was killed in 1920—said at the annual Easter Republican commemoration ceremony over his father's grave.

"The Republican Army has no intention of carrying out pressure against the Free State forces," he said. "The battlefield for Irish freedom has been transferred to England."

U.S. SENATOR LEWIS
DIES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Senator James Hamilton Lewis, 77, of Illinois, died Sunday night in a hospital of a heart ailment.

He was a Democrat and staunch supporter of President Roosevelt, known throughout the country for his Chesterfieldian manners.

He was the Democratic whip of the Senate, whose major duty it was to hold the party's voting strength readily available during floor ballot tests.

In that capacity he followed with few departures the leadership of the Roosevelt administration. His most outstanding difference with the administration came over Mr. Roosevelt's efforts to procure Senate ratification of the St. Lawrence Seaway pact with Canada. Mr. Lewis opposed it steadily and vigorously.

Pope Pius Makes Plea for Peace*Fair Distribution of World's Goods Seen as Solution of Troubles

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Pius XII raised his voice in his first Easter message from the throne of St. Peter in an eloquent plea for the "peace of justice and charity."

His scholarly Latin phrases, delivered after Easter mass in St. Peter's Basilica, cloaked specific suggestions for averting "dull flashes of war" which he said might blot out the "longed-for dawn of peace."

To a militarized world in which war and the fear of war dominated, the Holy Father pointed to the "sacred rights of humanity, liberty and dignity," and to a fair distribution of the world's goods as the way to peace. He exhorted the nations to combat unemployment, to wipe out the "strident contrast" between luxury and poverty, and to halt the spread of "destructive theories."

DISTRIBUTION OF GOODS

"Those goods and riches which God has strewn in the world for the advantage of his sons," he said, "should be fairly distributed."

He implored nations to cultivate "internal peace" and "conscience, to promote respect for legitimately constituted authority."

He asked that charity be added to justice in seeking a "reasonable and vital solution . . . even in the most heated controversies" and that "reasoning and calm" supplant anger and "dangerous incitement of feelings."

"How may peace be had," the Pope asked, "if, unfortunately, even among nations . . . pacts solemnly sanctioned and the pledged word have lost that security and value which are indispensable bases of reciprocal confidence, and without which ardently desired disarmament, material and moral, becomes with each passing day less possible of realization?"

The Pope addressed himself to "individuals, peoples and governments," and renewed the plea he broadcast to the world from the Sistine Chapel shortly after his election March 2 to succeed the late Pius XI, "The Pope of Peace."

EXPRESSES CONCERN

Throughout his 24-minute homily, the Pontiff plainly expressed his concern at world unrest.

Despite efforts to transform the traditional cheering in St. Peter's Square into more dignified hallelujahs, the Pope's arrival and departure were signals for prolonged applause and cries of "Long live the Pope!" in many languages. A great "Heil!" went up from a group of Germans.

The Pope raised his hand to impart the blessing and silence fell over the multitude in the square. His words carried clearly over the amplifying system installed for announcement of his election and his first benediction after his coronation.

Mussolini's False Move

IN LONDON AND IN PARIS TODAY THE British and French public seem agreed that the time for talking about Europe's plight—especially in the light of developments which have taken place in the last few days—has passed, that the heads of the two principal totalitarian states must be brought up squarely against the realities of democratic force. The only alternative is further concessions to the aggressors, the increase of their material and psychological influence, and, in the final analysis, a war in which the defenders of liberty and justice might find themselves sadly at a disadvantage.

Britain and France have endangered their vital interests in the hope that the Nazi and Fascist nations would see reason, for their own good and for the welfare of the world of which they form important parts, but the sum total of the dividend earned by the practical application of the principle of conciliation is reflected in continuous breaches of their pledged word by Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini. While it had been clear to most people for some time that the head of the Italian government could not observe the most important provisions of the Anglo-Italian friendship pact, and still live up to the unspecified but obvious requirements of the Rome-Berlin axis, there had been a modest belief among the most ardent cynics that he would hesitate to place himself in such an invidious light among the nations of the world as he now occupies as the conqueror of diminutive Albania. Perhaps Il Duce's new position as the axis marionette does not much concern him. Is not the sign of the fasces being hailed in the capital of King Zog's country? But he is not wise who seeks profit by cunning.

Under the Anglo-Italian friendship pact—a piece of jobbery against which Britain had had ample warning—Premier Mussolini undertook to maintain the status quo in the Mediterranean, to engage himself to no policy which might endanger the freedom of this vital maritime connection between Great Britain and the Empire beyond the seas. He had already broken one of his pledges, which he had no intention of keeping, by replacing the troops he withdrew from the Spanish Peninsula with younger and fresher legionnaires. Having assisted Insurgent Gen. Franco to establish an important strategic totalitarian base at the eastern entrance to the Mediterranean, he must perforce direct his gaze toward the approaches to the western end of the great waterway. This is where he touches Great Britain directly.

Out of the most recent developments, therefore, has come the possibility of Great Britain extending her material and moral support to those countries—specifically Greece and Turkey—which may before long receive open "attention" from the axis powers. Steadfast as Greece, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Bulgaria may be in their "Balkan-for-the-Balkans" policy, forces are abroad which are capable of upsetting overnight any preconceived notions about sovereignty and national tradition. It is now a question of how to meet these forces effectively. Britain is obviously awakening. She has gone further in her pledge to Poland than seemed possible a few weeks ago. But the Italian grab at the entrance to the Adriatic, the isolation of Yugoslavia, the vulnerability of Greece, constitute a new problem for the British government.

That Downing Street fully realizes the significance of the changed condition in the Mediterranean—to say nothing of the early possibility of fresh aggression by Germany in eastern Europe—is borne out by the government's decision to convene the members of Parliament at Westminster on Thursday, five days before the end of the customary Easter recess. By that time, of course, the whole European picture may have taken on a different hue altogether. In any event, it is clear to the most unimaginative individual that the Rome-Berlin axis feels it has sufficient strength to risk another throw of the totalitarian dice; irrespective of consequences of which the large majority of the masses in both Italy and Germany are not ignorant. But if either Herr Hitler or Signor Mussolini treats himself to the idea that Britain and France are unready, or afraid, he is making the mistake of his life.

Joseph Lyons

AUSTRALIA WILL CARRY ON WITH out her Premier Joseph Lyons, but his passing has robbed that southern Dominion of a public servant of outstanding ability, one who had obtained an intimate understanding of his country's needs, one in whom the great majority of his compatriots had implicit faith. He took charge of national affairs when the outlook for the future was far from bright. Internal finance and external trade presented him with fiscal and economic problems that would have discouraged many a stouter heart. But Joseph Lyons had the courage of his convictions, mindful that nasty medicine often produces rapid and effective results. He tightened the national belt, called for and obtained popular approval of policies demanding temporary personal sacrifices in the interests of the Commonwealth. And his course has been justified by results. At all times he had the collaboration of Sir Earle Page—head of the Country Party—whose wide experience in public life fitted him admirably to take the place of his friend and colleague who has passed beyond mortal ken. Canada sympathizes with the people of Australia in the loss they have sustained and assures them of their continued co-operation in all matters of Empire interest.

Victoria's Opportunity

THERE SHOULD BE A GENEROUS RESPONSE to the appeal of Mayor McGavin on behalf of the civic Royal Visit committee. The coming of the King and Queen for a two-day visit, attracting thousands of visitors, will be a great occasion for Victoria. It will give us the opportunity to show how a royal welcome should be staged at such an important point as this in Their Majesties' tour of Canada.

Nothing should be left undone to make sure that Victoria lives up to its opportunity by making the welcoming arrangements worthy of the city and the event. To do this funds are needed. The city and the provincial government have appropriated generously for the official features. To care for other organization work essential for giving our visitors the impression they should take away of Victoria, an appeal has been made for private contributions. There will be no one with pride in the community or interest in making the most of the visit who will not do his share towards making the size of the civic fund adequate.

Diligence in Authorship

JAMES JOYCE'S ANNOUNCEMENT THAT he will soon publish his sequel to "Ulysses," on which he has worked for the last 17 years, has revived discussions on the subject of painstaking authorship. The Manchester Guardian has delved into literary history for notable examples. Milton, it is recalled, planned "Paradise Lost" when he was 22, brooded over it until he was 50, then spent seven years of blindness on its composition. Gray devoted eight years to his brief "Elegy in a Country Churchyard." "The Divine Comedy" occupied Dante from his 35th year until his death at 66. Goethe wrote his first draft of "Faust" at 20 and finished the last at 80. Virgil devoted eight years to his "Georgics" and over 11 to the "Eneid." Among the novelists, Cervantes gave five years to writing "Don Quixote" and Le Sage took 11 to write "Gil Blas." But the palm probably goes to Flaubert, who spent six years on "Madame Bovary" and 26 on polishing and republishing "The Temptation of St. Anthony."

In the foregoing list there is no mention of the greatest literary man the English-speaking world has produced. The reason is not far to seek. For Shakespeare did not customarily work for months over passages in his plays. He averaged about two plays a year during two decades or more. When we consider the length and sustained quality of each, it can readily be seen that genius knows no fixed laws of composition. A Dante may require more than three decades for his "Divine Comedy," and a Flaubert over a quarter century for one novel; but words poured like Niagara from Voltaire and Anatole France, the two greatest stylists the French have produced. Four of Thackeray's greatest novels, all long, appeared within eight years. Dickens completed five of his best and most voluminous works in five years. All of which seems to indicate that while for ordinary mortals diligence and constant revision are essential, the genius may defy the rules and still gain immortality.

Now that Spain's war is ended, the population may be able to enjoy a quiet little bull fight again.

Mr. Hugh Savage has completed 25 years with the Cowichan Leader, first as editor and subsequently as proprietor of the publishing company. The anniversary has been an occasion to be marked in Duncan, and rightly so. For besides putting the Leader at the top of the weekly newspapers of all Canada, he himself has been a living exponent of faith in his richly-endowed district. Also, he has exemplified in his contacts a degree of integrity and courage, which have established him as a citizen to whom his community justifiably points with pride.

MR. HEPBURN'S BUDGET SPEECH From Ottawa Journal

Mr. Mitchell Hepburn's budget speech, delivered to the Ontario Legislature, took up 20,000 words, which must be almost a record. Yet the heart of the thing he had to tell (or should it be confessed?) could have been told adequately in 20 words. "It was that Mr. Hepburn last year increased the gross debt of Ontario by $37,000,000."

Mr. Hepburn increased Ontario's debt by that colossal sum despite the fact that he taxed the people of Ontario $86,000,000. He spent that gigantic sum, and more; the spending including $15,000,000 in succession duties—money which Mr. Hepburn cannot depend upon from year to year, and which should never be classed as current revenue, anyway.

Most people, we suppose, have forgotten Mr. Hepburn's old election speeches. Have forgotten how he talked about economy, and about what he proposed doing for us through lower expenditure and lower taxes. For a time, too, Mr. Hepburn made a play at the matter. With good propaganda, plus "stunts" about closing down Government House and selling government cars (piecemeal things that didn't matter), he fooled many into believing that he was "retrenching," that he was a champion of economy (most people, unfortunately, don't study the public accounts).

With the recent budget speech, the period of fooling must be over. For what that speech shows is that under Mr. Hepburn, Ontario, with the highest taxes in her history, has been given the highest expenditure and biggest debt in her history. Not even Mr. Hepburn's deluge of words can conceal the stark facts; facts which, too long camouflaged and concealed, are, to say the least, disturbing.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE HUMAN MIND, as has been noted in these premises before, adapts itself to anything after a while; and where, a few years ago, the local public regarded the prospect of war with a deep, physical horror, the idea has been dinned into us for so long that it has lost most of its punch. People talk about the prospect of war now rather as they talk about the prospects of an aldermanic by-election.

The explanation, of course, is that the public hasn't yet grasped what war would do to this country. It is easy to regard with fortitude the prospect of a lot of other people getting killed. We have endured the misery of most of the human race—in war, pestilence and carnage—with a splendid composure for many years now and can stand almost anything, if it happens to someone else. We are a tough breed.

Even our politicians don't seem to have the remotest idea how a war would affect Canada. They talk about it in military terms only. They promise there will be no conscription, no large expeditionary forces, and they seem to think that covers the subject. Either they don't know or don't want to say that it covers only one half of the subject.

The other half is not nearly so simple. You have to finance war. Fighting isn't enough, and if you doubt it, look at Canada's war debt of $2,000,000,000. And no one in authority, so far as I can read in Hansard, is telling us how we shall finance the next war.

We were fat when we went into the last war, with a national debt which, today, looks so small that it is almost humiliating. It was easy to borrow $2,000,000,000 for the war. But can you imagine the Canadian government borrowing another couple of billions and paying interest on it in perpetuity? We haven't paid off any of our present war debt and apparently it is to go on forever until, in interest payments, it is paid over and over again.

The Canadian government cannot pay its operating costs out of its present revenues. How shall it finance huge additional war costs if it cannot borrow the money? There are three obvious ways. The first—and, in the end, most probable—is to repudiate the old debt by the genteel swindle of inflation—and then borrow again, if anyone is foolish enough to buy a government bond under such conditions. The second way is to finance the war by a new system of credit, like that advocated by the Socialists; by Mr. McGeer or by Mr. Aberhart.

Undoubtedly this can be done. You can provide all the money you want up to the limit of your ability to produce goods—if you are prepared to put your whole economic system in the hands of the state. Russia, Germany and Japan have all done it. But some of the results have been a little disagreeable.

It means dictatorship, of course, and the end of personal liberty. At very best it means the end of the present economic system. If the people want another system, that is all right, but let them go into it eyes open. Don't let them imagine they can have the advantages, whatever they amount to, of this system and all the glories of another system at the same time.

As a matter of fact, a war would probably produce another political and economic system in this country and in all other warring countries anyway. Our system barely survived the last war and, perhaps, didn't, but is taking like the second Charles, an inconceivably long time a-dying.

One thing is certain—the third possible plan of financing the war is the only one which would enable the present system to survive. The third system is to pay as we go, something we have never done, up to now, in war or peace.

The Americans are a curious people and unpredictable and do some screwy things, but they do face facts. In Washington just now they are facing the facts of another war and are planning the financial and economic as well as the military side of it. A bill now before the Senate would impose sufficient taxes in time of war to pay the cost and, by taxing all profits over 6 per cent would eliminate profiteering and discourage business men from promoting war to make money.

Something of the same sort must be done in Canada if we are to pay for the war out of income and save our existing system. Actually, in the armament legislation now before Parliament, this identical principle is adopted. In any government arms contract where open tender is impracticable the contractor is allowed a profit of only 5 per cent on the actual capital used in the contract.

Why doesn't the government say right now that it will extend this principle in case of war and tax all profits, of every company from the peanut stand to the giant corporation, over 5 per cent?

If the corporations have any sense they will insist on some such arrangement, not alone because they are patriotic but for self-protection. They must know that another war debt would sink the present financial system. Perhaps some imagine that they would escape the deluge because their money is not in government bonds or any other fixed security. Perhaps they think they would come through an inflation as the German corporations did because they owned imperishable assets: factories and machines, unaffected by the value of money.

What a hope! See how the German corporations survived, until today they are all working for the state, to fulfill a madman's dream. So in Italy, so in Russia, so in Japan.

Perhaps the financiers haven't enough sense to see that the upheaval of a war, if not carefully handled, could not fail to end private property as we know it. Financiers

Mountain Highway Now Lifeline on Which China's Defence Depends

By GEORGE A. FITCH

CHUNGKING, West China (By Mail)—I have just traveled over a great part of the new life line road China has opened to the west.

Part of it is the hazardous route Marco Polo followed centuries ago but today China is using it as a back-door highway to bring in desperately needed supplies and munitions that the Japanese have cut off from the east.

This road is an engineering marvel, winding and climbing more than 1,400 miles through steep mountains, so rough that only pony caravans have crossed them before. It links this new Chinese capital, Chungking, with the Burmese border, Mandalay, and the port at Rangoon, India.

BUILT BY NATIVES

It was laid out, surveyed and built entirely by native labor; constructed in less than a year.

It was cut through ancient passes—some 8,000 feet high—without a single piece of road-building equipment; other than bullock carts to haul away rock and stone rollers to smooth the surface.

Traveling from Chungking, Yunnan, to this city, I covered more than half of this new road, sitting on gasoline cases' George A. Fitch in a truck, with my suitcase at my back. Counting delays and stops in dingy hotels, some where the rats

Chinese literally are falling over themselves—refugees, soldiers, civilians.

TRAVEL PROBLEMS

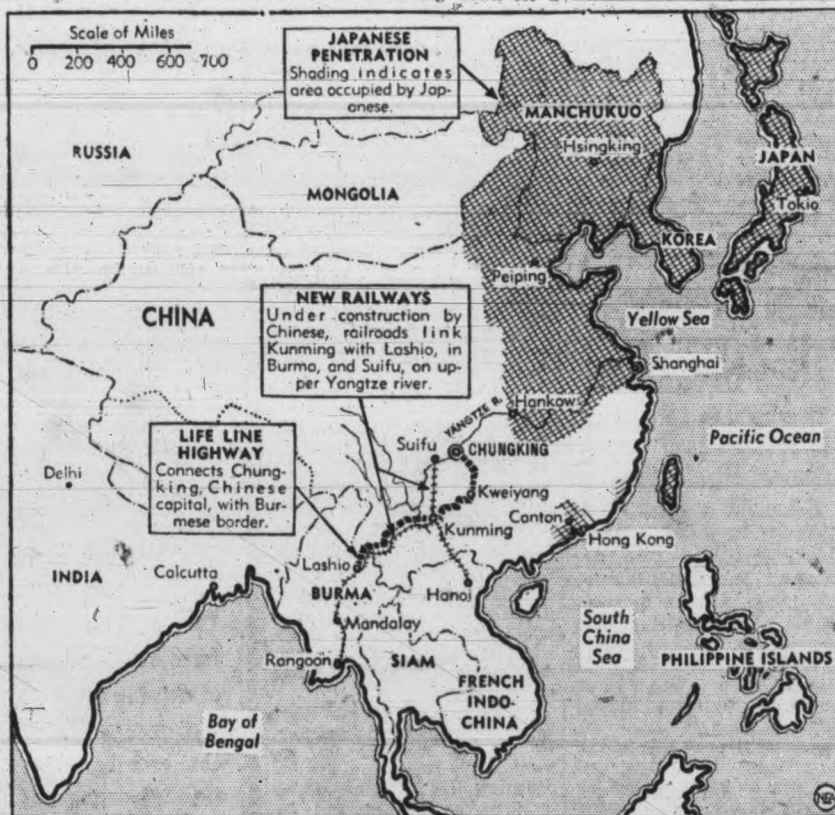

Buses from Kweiyang to Chungking are booked to July. Planes make the trip frequently but are delayed by air raids. Travelers are driven to extreme measures to get about—as in the case of the Englishman I saw in Kunming.

Accompanied by two servants, he had come all the way from Rangoon, some 1,500 miles, in an ordinary taxi. Fortunately for the taxi, there was another passenger waiting to take it back. Transporting freight is even more difficult. Everything must go by truck—and trucks are scarce. American business representatives are finding it necessary to pay as much as $1,200 in Chinese currency per ton of freight. This is because the government needs every available facility.

So serious has the problem become that one of the American oil companies operating in west China has arranged for 1,000 ponies to carry gasoline along the route of the proposed new railway from Kunming to Suifu, on the Yangtze River above Chungking. Each pony will carry two cases holding 20 gallons at a cost of $30 per pony in Chinese money.

But even this is preferable to plane transportation. Baggage by air costs 70 cents per pound and may be shot down en route. Still aviation business is so brisk that ships are scheduled a full month in advance.

Such is the tempo these days in western China, where the government is settling down for a frisked about all night, it took nearly two weeks.

On above map, China's new backdoor highway from Chungking, the capital, to Burma, is indicated by heavy broken line. Also shown are railroads which will open new area in west China. A shaded area represents extent of Japanese occupation of China.

We rode from 7.30 in the morning to 8.30 at night one day. There were 28 consecutive half-penny turns at one stretch of the highway. Twice we were held up for hours by slippery ascents—once at a place where a truck had, only a few minutes before, skidded off the road and crashed down an embankment. We covered only 113 miles in that interval.

Yet over this road a fighting China expects to transport the supplies that she hopes may eventually turn the tide in her struggle with Japan. These supplies are landed at the port of Rangoon, Burma, 2,100 miles distant, then trucked over the highway, as yet scarcely wide enough for two vehicles to pass in most places.

I was fortunate, for that matter, to be making the trip to Chungking at all. For the transportation problem in this new frontier of China is staggering. Shoved back into this westernmost province, Szechwan, the have generally overlooked the obvious, but the ordinary man should have more sense. To the ordinary man a war financed on borrowing means that his bank account will be no good after the temporary war boom is over. It means his life insurance policy will be no good. In Canada there are 4,000,000 men and women with bank accounts, and 3,500,000 with life insurance policies. They ought to be interested in war, new defensive. Everything radiates from Chungking, the new capital, located at the head of the mighty Yangtze gorges and on the threshold of the country's richest, most populous province. Together with Yunnan and Kweichow in the southwest, Szechwan until quite recently was considered too remote and inaccessible to command much attention. But there has been a transformation.

AREA OF OPPORTUNITY

The new Burmese-Chungking road is being improved by thousands of coolies—safeguarded and widened. Fine cantilever bridges are swinging into place at some points.

Engineers have just broken ground for two new railways, each more than 700 miles in length. One will connect Kunming, capital of Yunnan, with Suifu on the upper Yangtze. The other will go from Kunming to Lashio on the Burmese border, both to be completed within two years. The Burma motor road and these railroads will shorten the distance from Europe and India to west China by more than 2,000 miles.

Finally, branch roads to other important parts are getting under way. Despite the war, China is building seven railroads in all.

So opening of the west becomes China's newest concern. It may decide China's future.

The ups and downs have been fun. Sometimes I think I had more excitement in the hit-and-miss days.—Walter Huston, actor.

Prime Numbers Still a Mystery

ALTHOUGH the civilized world has been using numbers for centuries, the abstractions 1, 2, 3 and so on still possess many unusual properties. For example, a number is called a "perfect" number if it is equal to the sum of its divisors smaller than itself.

Thus 6 is the first perfect number, for its divisors are 1, 2 and 3 and the sum of these equals 6. All perfect numbers so far known are even numbers like 6. Never has an odd perfect number been found but it has not been proved the odd perfect numbers do not exist.

Another puzzle of mathematical numbers is the occurrence of prime numbers. A prime number, you will recall, is a number divisible only by one and by itself. Thus, 2, 3, 5, 7, 11, and 13 are primes, while 4, 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, 14 and 15 are not primes.

The occurrence of primes in the number sequence is very irregular and mathematicians for many years have been challenged to find rules for their occurrence.

In a report to the American Mathematical Society, Dr. J. Barkley Rosser of Cornell University describes his progress on this matter.

Dr. Rosser cannot predict exactly how primes occur, but he has found the result that the nth prime is never less than n times the logarithm of n and never exceeds this quantity by more than 2n log log n.

Using his results, Dr. Rosser can show that if one divides each of the first 1,000,000,000 prime numbers into one and adds up all the quotients, the sum lies between 3.58 and 3.62.

In 1742 the mathematician Goldbach suggested that every even integer is the sum of two primes. Laboriously this has been tested correct up to the number 10,000 but has not yet been proved.

Watched 'Caddy' At D'Arcy Island

Pictures Secured By Victoria Youths Unsuitable For Reproduction

Two Victoria youths, Reginald Parris, 592 Island Road, and Edgar Green, 2258 West Thompson Avenue, watched "Caddy" for several minutes off D'Arcy Island last Tuesday while they were on a fishing trip.

It was about 5 in the afternoon after they had come ashore near their cabin when they heard a sudden swish in the water about 100 feet offshore. They saw "Caddy" rear up and start swimming parallel to the shore. While Parris ran for his camera Green followed "Caddy" along the shore. "I was running as fast as I could and could just keep up with him," Green said. Their description of "Caddy" was similar to those of others who have seen him. They said he had a head not unlike a horse and was about the same color as kelp.

The youths reported their experience when they returned from their fishing trip yesterday. The pictures they got only showed a small object breaking the surface of the water in the distance and were not possible to reproduce.

EASTER SERVICE AT MOUNT TOLMIE.—Part of the large crowd at the Easter Sunrise Service conducted by the Victoria General Ministerial Association at the summit of Mount Tolmie yesterday.

Thousands at Sunrise Service

Worshippers Attend Early in Morning at Summit of Mount Tolmie

Under clouded skies and with a cool wind blowing, nearly 1,000 early-morning worshippers attended the annual Easter Sunrise Service, conducted by the Victoria General Ministerial Association, at the summit of Mount Tolmie, yesterday.

The service started soon after 7 and the benediction was pronounced at 7.45. During that time the sun was blanketed by clouds, but as the crowds dispersed, broke through to shine over the mountain.

USE ELECTRIC ORGAN

A Hammond electric organ was loaned by Fletcher Bros. Music Store. In his brief thanks to those who aided in the producing of the service, Rev. A. E. Whitehouse made mention of the fact that it was the first time an electric organ had been used at an open-air Easter service. Edward Parsons was at the console.

A complete system of loud speakers were set up from the stage in the hollow of the mountain just off the road at the summit. A massed choir under the direction of C. Warren stood to the left of the stage and at the right was the Salvation Army band under the direction of Adjutant C. Watt.

The band opened the service with a musical number followed by the Invocation by Mr. Whitehouse. The hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," was sung and Rev. Edwin Bracher gave the Scripture reading. Mr. Whitehouse gave a prayer which was followed by the taking of the offering during which the choir sang the anthem, "And the Glory of the Lord." Immediately before the Easter message by Rev. G. A. Reynolds, the hymn, "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today," was sung.

EASTER MESSAGE BRIEF

The Easter message was brief but during the short time Mr. Reynolds spoke he drew a clear picture of the true meaning of Easter.

"We must give praise this Easter day," Mr. Reynolds said,

"which commemorates the resurrection of Him, who on Calvary 2,000 years ago, gave Himself for us."

"If Christ be not risen, we would be still in sin and our hope of resurrection would be gone."

"We are apt to think only of the suffering of Christ on the Cross at Easter," Mr. Reynolds continued: "the thought foremost in our minds should be that Christ suffered that we too may live."

"Let this Easter be a blessed one to each of us," he said. "We were raised to show forth the spirit of Him who gave his life. Let us lift our prayers today for those who suffer across Europe and for those who believe that Christianity has failed."

Following the message, Mr. Whitehouse wished all, on behalf of the ministerial association, a happy Easter, and spoke in sympathy for Dr. A. S. Imrie whose wife passed away last Wednesday. Dr. Imrie was to have conducted the service.

Prior to the pronouncing of the benediction by Mr. Whitehouse, the choir was heard in Handel's "Alleluia Chorus."

The roads of the mountain which were jammed with parked cars, were quickly cleared through the efficiency of the Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich police forces, as the large congregation withdrew from the location.

Victoria Enjoyed Sun

Eastern Canada and United States Shivered; Sunrise Services Well Attended

While the rest of Canada was muffled in fur coats, as protection against chill winds, Victoria spent Easter day outdoors, as a warm sun shone overhead and the sky was blue, with now and then small patches of white clouds.

It was a perfect Easter Sunday, following a rather dull early morning, which obscured the sun until around 9. Then it broke through the clouds, making a silver sheen of the waters of the Straits and lighting up the surrounding hills and mountains amazingly clearly.

Churches were filled at the morning services. Later most Victorians were out of doors, motoring, sun bathing on beaches or porches, hiking, gardening and cycling. Hundreds visited Butchart's Gardens.

Eastern Canadians observed Easter Sunday in weather that in some districts was more suitable for winter-time festivities.

Although church attendances were little affected, the usual after-church Easter parade of new spring finery was cut sharply from other years in most centres. In Montreal and Quebec city skiing was the day's popular pastime.

Four inches of snow fell in New Brunswick, while in Nova Scotia the fall varied from three to seven inches and turned to sleet and rain in Prince Edward Island. Snow also fell upon Montreal, Quebec and some other Quebec points, while in Ontario the weather generally was unseasonably chilly. Chill weather also prevailed in the prairies, with some centres reporting snow and rain.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King spent Easter weekend at his Kinsmen country estate on the Gatineau River, where he was believed to have been kept fully informed on the unsettled European situation.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General, and Lady Tweedsmuir spent the day on a train en route east from Calgary. Their Excellencies have been holidaying on the Pacific Coast.

Sunrise services attracted good crowds in many parts of the continent. Two thousand attended at Mt. Tolmie here, 1700 gathered in Willowvale Park, Toronto, 50,000 people on Chicago's lake-front, 30,000 at the Hollywood Bowl and 16,000 in Salt Lake City.

In Jerusalem, heart of the Holy Land, churches were filled but the celebration was shadowed by presence of 20,000 troops on guard against Arab-Jewish conflicts, and tenseness forced thousands of prospective pilgrims from Cyprus and Egypt to abandon their plans.

CARRIED THEIR HATS

NEW YORK (AP)—A spanking wind and near-freezing temperature chilled New York's multi-million-dollar Easter parade yesterday and kept much of the lighter finery under winter wraps, contrasting with the bright, pert millinery of springtime.

Early-morning snow flakes shortener Easter dawn services and despite a kindly sun at noon the publicized fashions had to be covered—mostly by mink and black caucal.

A crowd estimated at 75,000 jammed Fifth Avenue to watch the exit of dignitaries from St. Patrick's cathedral.

What they saw, sartorially speaking, were the currently favored white straws and poke bonnets, incongruous adjuncts to winter furs; a few brave society

Three New Auto Camps Building

Fine Accommodation For Tourists On Outskirts of Victoria

Greater Victoria's accommodation for tourists this summer will be greater than ever, as workmen complete three bungalow camps, and an old English style restaurant. Two of the bungalow camps are near Parson's Bridge. One, opposite the Six Mile House, is situated on flat ground at the end of Esquimalt Harbor, with a fine view of the waters of the Straits and the Olympic Mountains. It will accommodate more than 50 persons, all in one long building. The other bungalow camp is across the bridge, set in the trees, in an ideal location for visiting motorists. Both will be modern in every respect.

Perhaps the most unique building is the camp now nearing completion at Craigflower Bridge, opposite the modern bungalow camp erected two years ago. The new building will have 20 apartments, of one and two rooms, all opening onto a wide veranda, like the deck of a ship, which runs completely around the building. On the lower floor are large porticoes which look onto the waters of Portage Inlet.

At Royal Oak the new thatched-roof restaurant is progressing and work is now being done on the grounds. Part of the thatched roof has already been set in place. These buildings will be completed in time to receive the floods of visitors expected in Victoria when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth are here late in May.

BERLIN (CP-Havas)—Eleven bishops and presidents of Lutheran and evangelical synods yesterday issued a protest against the Archbishop of Canterbury's recent statement calling for common action of all Christian churches against the German menace.

The Protestant leaders, spokesmen for German churches identified with Nazi principles, accused the Primate of all England of being allied with Moscow.

Miss Mae Dickson Wedded Today at First Church

Becomes Bride of John O. Hemmingsen In Pretty Setting

Amidst a setting of Easter lilies and spring blossoms, and in the presence of a congregation which included many guests from Vancouver, the marriage of Mary Margaret (Mae), elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dickson of 464 Stannard Avenue, and Mr. John Oliver Hemmingsen, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Hemmingsen of Cedar Hill, took place this afternoon at 2 in the First United Church. Rev. Hugh McLeod officiated, assisted by Rev. John E. Bell.

IN WHITE LACE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a beautiful gown of white imported French lace over white satin, smartly fashioned. Her veil of soft tulle was held in place on her head in fan-shape, adorned with real orange blossoms sent from California for the occasion. To complete her attire she carried a sheaf of Calla lilies and freesias.

There were three attendants in the bridal retinue, Miss Margaret Hemmingsen, as maid of honor and the Misses Marie Hemmingsen and Miss Iris Dickson, sisters of the bridegroom and bride as bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a graceful frock of queen's blue sheer, fashioned with long waist and full skirt, with which she wore a bolero jacket. The bridesmaids were dressed alike in pretty frocks of dusty pink. They all wore pillbox hats fashioned in circular style of pleated tulle to match their frocks, with crowns massed with pink and blue forget-me-nots. Their bouquets were composed of pink snapdragons, pink carnations and blue iris.

The bridegroom was supported by his brother, Mr. Bill Hemmingsen, and the ushers were Messrs. Ian McQueen and Bob Hemmingsen.

RECEPTION HELD

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a large number of guests were welcomed by Mrs. Dickson and Mrs. Hemmingsen, the former wearing a smart model gown of navy blue lace and a model French hat of navy straw and the latter in queen's blue lame with hat to match. They each wore corsage bouquets of gardenias and lily of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemmingsen left to spend their honeymoon in California and will later make their home on the West Coast. For traveling the bride wore a navy blue tailleur with light beige overcoat with dark trim and accessories in fuchsia shade.

The bride has been on the laboratory staff of the Provincial Board of Health, Vancouver, and both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of British Columbia, and both attended Victoria College.

Rev. T. E. Sawyer was the speaker at the meeting of the Metropolitan Evening Auxiliary on Wednesday at the home of Miss Etta Gilliland, Johnson Street. The devotional period on the Easter theme, conducted by Miss Dennstedt and Miss E. Walton, included a vocal solo by Miss Louise Noble. Miss G. Tonks was welcomed as a guest. Miss P. Winslow reported on her work as literature secretary.

The watchword given by Mrs. I. Mayhew described the activities of the Rev. U. Laite, whom the auxiliary supplies with literature for distribution. Mrs. G. Robinson reported on telephone calls and visits made last month. Refreshments were served. Mrs. W. G. Gilliland pouring the tea. The hostess and her assistants were thanked by Miss N. Snyder.

The next meeting will be held on May 10 at the home of Miss Pamela Winslow, 1044 Craigdarroch Road.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore an imported gown of white satin, with bodice shirred from waist to neckline, and a full gored skirt trailing slightly at the back, her veil of embroidered net was held to her head with a coronet of orange blossoms and pearls and she carried an arm bouquet of Calla lilies.

Miss Dorothy Warnock was bridesmaid, in an imported French model of Swiss violet chiffon, her hat being covered with gardenias in rose shade, with matching veil. Her bouquet was of tulips, iris and carnations. The matron of honor was Mrs. F. Wakeham, who was attired in a model gown of peach chiffon, with matching hat and veil and carried an arm bouquet of iris, tulips and narcissi. A. Anderson supported the groom, and the ushers were Roy Taylor, brother of the bride, and R. Ellison and F. Wakeham.

A reception was held after the service at the home of the bride's parents, the bride party standing before the fireplace, which was massed with Calla lilies and spring flowers. They were assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, who was attired in a model gown of Marina blue silk lace, with navy blue accessories and wearing a corsage of carnations and violets, and the groom's mother, who was gowned in a parma violet chiffon, with accessories to match, and corsage of gardenias and violets. The drawing-rooms were massed with spring flowers, and the wedding gifts were on display in the den. The buffet supper was served in the dining-room, the table being covered with an Italian cutwork cloth and centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, low silver rose bowls were massed with pink and white sweet peas and carnations, and silver candlesticks held tall white tapers at each end of the table.

The bride and groom left on the midnight boat for Vancouver and will travel by car as far as Portland. On their return they will reside in Victoria.

STEVENS-BLAKE

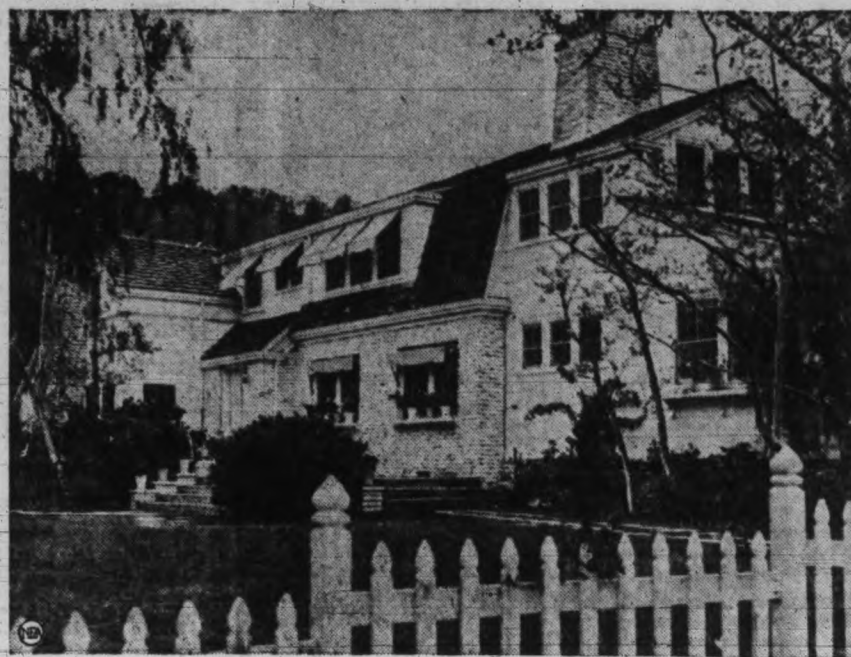

The marriage was quietly solemnized in St. John's Church at 1.30 o'clock on Friday afternoon, Rev. G. R. V. Bolster officiating, between Norma Ethelwynne, second daughter of Mr. J. H. Blake, 1603 Jubilee Avenue, and the late Mrs. Blake, and Mr. Victor Harold Stevens, youngest son of Mrs. E. O. Stevens, 419 Davida Street, and the late Mr. Stevens.

Mr. Blake gave his daughter away, and she wore a grey suit, a coral coat, queen's blue accessories and a corsage bouquet of Tallman roses and violets. Miss Jean Blake was her sister's bridesmaid, in a black suit, with fuchsia accessories and a corsage bouquet of white carnations, and the best man was Mr. Walter Eaton.

An informal reception was held after the service at the home of the bride's father, during which the bride couple stood in a silver and white floral bower. The table was centred with the wedding cake and arranged with white flowers.

Guests were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Blake, the latter wearing a frock of petunia silk crepe and hat to tone and a corsage bouquet of pink carnations, and receiving with them was Mrs. Walter Eaton, dressed in navy blue with petunia accessories and a corsage bouquet of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother was unavoidably absent through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left for Seattle, and after the honeymoon will make their home on "S" Street. Among the guests were

ROWBOTHAM-STYAN

At St. Mary's Church, Saanichton, on Saturday evening Leta Kilgour, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Styan, Keating Crossroad, and Mr. Frank Rowbotham, second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rowbotham, 1220 Reynolds Road, Saanichton, were united in marriage by Rev. Canon Pierce.

The church was beautifully decorated with Easter lilies and daffodils, and white satin bows marked the guest pews. Mrs. F. Greenstead and Miss P. Lyle were responsible for the decorations. The wedding music was played by Mrs. F. Goodwin, sister of the bride. During the signing of the register, Master Eric Goodwin, nephew of the bride, sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of French grey crepe with pin-tucked bodice and sleeves and knife-pleated circular skirt, a wine color turban and matching veil and accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of pink carnations and violets.

Miss Alice Styan, her sister, was the bridesmaid, in a frock of powder blue cashmere made with a fitted skirt worked bodice with pleated skirt and a navy pill box hat with a veil and navy blue accessories. Her corsage bouquet was pink carnations. Mr. John Rowbotham, brother of the groom, was best man.

A reception was held after the service at the home of the bride's parents. The couple stood beneath an archway decorated with white satin ribbon, greenery and masses of spring flowers. Guests were received by Mrs. C. L. Styan, in a dress of navy blue crepe with hat and accessories to match, and Mrs. Rowbotham in a dress of black cut velvet with hat and accessories to match, both wearing corsage bouquets of violets. A buffet supper was served from a table centred with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by silver vases of Easter flowers and tall pink tapers in silver holders on each side. Mr. W. Sturrock, an old family friend, proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a frock of white lace over satin with a brief train and short sleeves. Her veil of tulle was arranged in halo-style on her head, and she wore long lace mittens and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and pink rosebuds. Miss Marjorie Delmastro was her sister's bridesmaid in a bouffant frock of orchid moire taffeta with short sleeves, matching mittens, and a headress of live violets and pink rosebuds, and carried a muff of the same flowers. Mr. Jim O'Connor was best man, and Mr. Richard Jones acted as usher. Baskets of white flowers made an attractive background for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmastro entertained a number of her guests later in the K. of C. Hall, where an orchestra supplied music for dancing, and also accompanied Mr. Thomas Crabbe, who sang "Because." During the reception the bride and groom stood under a floral arch, supper being served later at a table centred with a handsome four-tiered cake, the gift of Mr. A. Nette, VERNON GOMEZ, southpaw pitching star of the world baseball champion New York Yankees, tells how, after an early pitching spurt with the club, general manager Ed Barrow advised him to put on 20 pounds. "I put on the 20 pounds," says Gomez, "and they nearly forgot Gomez." Continuing Gomez's remarks about the pitching casualties as a result of the annual game between all-star aggregations from the American and National Leagues.

He pointed out that Van Lingle Mungo, Hal Schumacher, Dizzy Dean, Johnny Allen and Johnny Vander Meer were all victims of the engagement. Gomez traces the trouble to pitchers working out of turn and excessive bearing down due to lack of knowledge of hitters and a desire to make a showing during their three innings that will be remembered.

"I started the second all-star game in New York despite the fact that I had a sore arm," relates the currying Castilian.

"I didn't want anyone to suspect that I was afraid to tackle Carl Hubbell."

Mungo hurt his back in an all-star engagement.

Schumacher had won seven straight when he appeared in the all-star show in Cleveland in 1935 with one day's rest. The St. Lawrence-slicker struck out three or four in a row, but the resultant pain didn't disappear until he submitted to an operation last fall.

A liner off Earl Averill's bat broke Dean's toe in Washington in 1936. Something snapped in the cotton picker's throwing apparatus while he resorted to an unnatural delivery in order to favor the sore digit.

Allen's arm misery which led to his operation started with the all-star business in Cincinnati last summer and, while he had ear and appendix difficulties, Vander Meer hasn't been himself since the same afternoon.

Branch Rickey was stressing the importance of abstinence to youngsters assembled at a St. Louis Cardinal farm baseball school some years back.

The oratorical director of the far-flung Red Bird chain filled one glass with water and another with gin. He dropped a worm into each glass. The worm in the water wiggled gleefully. The other sank to the bottom.

"Now, young men, what do you get out of that?" Professor Rickey asked the students.

"Well, Mr. Rickey," spoke up a bushy named Pepper Martin, "all I get out of it is that if you drink gin you won't have worms."

Young Martin was promptly moved to the head of the class... has remained there since.

He is now captain of the Cardinals, and the older heads of the organization wonder why Roy Blades isn't using him regularly.

The blokes in the red blazers won world championships with Martin in centre field and on third base. They bagged another National League pennant with Pepper sitting in the dugout.

Perhaps Blades figures that it doesn't make much difference what the Wild Hoss of the Osage is doing just so long as he is on the premises.

At 35 and eight years after stealing a world series from Moose Earnshaw and Lefty Grove, John Leonard Martin is still a handy guy to have around.

Hank Greenberg doesn't think he'll ever again come close to Babe Ruth's mark of 60 homers in one season. "I hit 58 last year, but now I'm honestly convinced I was 'way over my head," says the Detroit slugger. "I never could accustom myself to that fanfare and speculation as to whether or not I'd crack Ruth's record. It gripped everyone but me. It would have been nice—and a swell thing for my own personal posterity. Maybe years from now I could drag out the scrapbook and show people what a big guy I was—but they wouldn't know how lucky I had been."

Playing Today at Oak Bay to Decide B.C. Amateur Championship

Raffing home a three-foot putt from a half stymie and against the roll of the green Ken Black, Capilano Club, Vancouver, defeated Freddy Painter, Gorge Vale, 1 up in a thrilling 18-hole semifinal of the British Columbia men's amateur championship at Oak Bay yesterday afternoon. The dramatic finish on the final green was a heart-pulsing climax to a fine match.

In the other semifinal Ted Colgate, Colwood, turned back Alan Taylor of the home club 3 and 2, in another match that was keenly fought all the way.

Yesterday's matches attracted a large gallery and the brand of golf was good.

Black and Colgate met over 36 holes today to decide the title, and a successor to Don Gowan, Vancouver.

In the quarter-finals yesterday morning Black was victor over W. Watson, Peace Portal, 4 and 2; Colgate defeated K. K. Verley, Oak Bay, 4 and 3; Painter defeated Bob Morrison, Oak Bay, 4 and 3 and Taylor defeated Frank Willey, Glen Oaks, 4 and 3.

Black and Painter opened their match by halving the first two holes in par figures. Painter took the lead at the third, the only time he was in front, with a par four. Black pushing his second shot to the right, chipping on and taking two putts for a five. Black squared matters at the fourth, Painter getting a bad lie with his drive and catching a trap with his second to finish with a five to his opponent's par four. The Vancouver star went into the lead at the fifth, exploding his drive dead from a bunker for a birdie three. The next four holes were halved in par figures. Black was out in 34 and Painter 35.

SECOND NINE

The pair started the journey home by halving the next three holes.

On the 13th Painter caught a trap to the right of the green, chipped well past the cup to finish with a five to Black's par three and go two down. On the 14th Black made one of his two bad mistakes when he three-putted for a half. On the 15th Ken made his second error when he misjudged with his second to catch a trap with the whole green in front of him to finish with a six. Painter was one down with three holes to go.

Painter was forced to make a beautiful recovery out of a trap to get his half in fours at the 16th. On the 17th both got home healthy putts for fours. Then came the nerve-tingling finish on the home green. Both players used up 39 strokes on the last nine.

Colgate and Taylor engaged in a ding-dong affair with the former never down. The Colwood player won the first hole with a par five to Taylor's seven. The latter squared matters at the second. Colgate won the third, halved the fourth and took the fifth to be two up. The next two holes were halved with Taylor winning the eighth to be one down. The ninth was halved, leaving Colgate one up at the turn.

Taylor squared the match at the 10th only to have Colgate win back his lead at the 11th. The 12th was halved with Colgate winning the 13th to take a two hole lead. Taylor rallied to win the 14th but lost the 15th and 16th and the match three and two. Colgate was out in 36 and Taylor 39.

Victoria City Captures Cup

Defeats Navy Eleven
3 to 1 in Final Battle
For Mayor's Trophy

Establishing a nice lead in the opening half and staving off attacks to limit the Navy to a single tally in the closing 45 minutes, Joe Bloom's maroon-sweated Victoria City footballers took possession of McGavin Cup Saturday afternoon with a 3 to 1 victory over the Wednesday League's sailors in the final at the Athletic Park.

Manager Pember's naval brigade had a couple of regulars missing and four of those in harness were suffering from leg injuries. With these handicaps the team failed to hit its stride.

First-half play saw the City men, who had the wind in their favor, doing most of the offensive work. They bagged all their goals in this canto, Al Condon scoring from close quarters after five minutes, Barney Barnswell making it 2 to 0 seven minutes later when he took the ball away from Fullback Briggs to score, and Condon tallying again near the end with a long shot that caught Goalie Bill Mundie out of his net. Navy forays were infrequent and not very dangerous in this session, attempts by Alec Ross, who was taken off in favor of Healey late in the game owing to a bad ankle, being the most dangerous. Wally Rowe, City goalie, had to deal with.

SECOND HALF
Navy perked up nicely in the closing stanza and staged some power attacks on Rowe's goal and a number of the hot shots the net-minder brushed aside had luck written all over them. Three or four times in this session they bore down for lengthy attacks and poured liberal helpings of leather at the goalie, but it wasn't until the game was four minutes from its close that Elmo Geddes, smart inside right, booted the leather past Rowe to save the Navy from the bitter taste of a shutout. Youson and Leggett, City fullbacks, broke up many a Navy rush in the final 45 minutes.

Bloom's boys were not so strong on the attack in the last half as they were in the previous session and the wind dropped to deprive the sailors of the advantage their opponents had in the opening period.

Alderman W. H. Davies presented the cup to Wally Rowe, captain of the Victoria City team, after the game on behalf of the donor, Mayor Andrew McGavin.

Teams follow:
Navy — Mundie, McDonald, Briggs, Sanders, Cockrill, Hutton, Geddes, Abercrombie, Ross, De Costa and Hay.

Victoria City — Rowe, Youson, Leggett, W. Robbins, Fieldhouse, Williams, Barnswell, McCaig, Munro, Condon and H. Holness.

English Football Leaders Beat Sunderland
6 to 2 for Third Straight Win

LONDON (CP)—Everton turned in its third straight victory of the Easter holiday series today to go into the final drive for the English Football League championship with an eight-point margin over Wolverhampton Wanderers. The pacemaking squad whipped Sunderland 6 to 2, while the Wolves gained a 2 to 1 verdict over Aston Villa.

Middlesbrough and Charlton Athletic moved into joint possession of third place when Derby County fell 1 to 0 to Portsmouth. The northwesterners edged out a 3 to 2 decision over Leicester City and Charlton won 3 to 1 from Chelsea at Stamford Bridge.

Playing a scoreless draw against Liverpool at St. Andrew's, Birmingham, cellar occupant brought its point total to 25, one less than Leicester City. Chelsea is in 20th place with 28 points.

A 2 to 1 triumph over Fulham put Blackburn Rovers two points nearer promotion from the second division. Chesterfield and Sheffield United, joint holders of the runner-up position at the week-end, were idle and their positions in the standing were taken by Sheffield Wednesday and Luton Town who now have 46 points, six less than Blackburn. The Wednesday defeated Millwall 3 to 1 and the heavy-scoring team blanked Southampton 4 to 0.

Newport County needs only a point or so to clinch top position in the third division's southern section. The Welshmen drew 1 to 1 at Torquay. Barnsley, already established champions of the goal northern loop, lost by the

Leafs Tie Up Stanley Cup Hockey Final With
3 to 2 Victory

BOSTON (CP)—Precedent, built up through long years of bitter playoff rivalry, traveled more acceptably than ever with Toronto Maple Leafs today as they headed home for the third and fourth games of their Stanley Cup finals with Boston's National Hockey League champions.

The Leafs, following a habit they learned back in 1933, evened the best-of-seven series at one game each here last night with a 3 to 2 victory on Doc Romnes' goal after 10 minutes of overtime. In three previous cup series, the Leafs have beaten the Bruins on the round after losing the opener. They did it in 1933, 1935 and 1936, and last year they swept their round with the bruising Boston club in three straight games.

But precedent still didn't seem to hold the story of this series, for if ever the Leafs had to struggle to win a playoff contest they had to last night. Romnes' goal broke up a fierce duel that towards the end was veering more and more to the side of the Bruins.

BETTER "MONEY" CLUB

In fighting off the attacking power of this great Boston machine, and in the masterly stroke that brought the winning goal, Leafs looked once more like a "money" club, however. They checked far more consistently and broke from defence formation more speedily than in the first game, which Boston won 2 to 1.

Harvey Jackson, veteran wingman who is just regaining his full value after a knee injury, set up the deciding goal after a series of furious Bruin attacks. Jackson took the puck from Romnes on a face-off, then stepped over the blue line as Romnes and Gus Marker headed for the goal.

Jack Bauer came to meet him, and stepped around the youngster and laid the puck on Marker's stick. Marker deflected it to Romnes, who whacked it past Frank Brimsek.

"Toronto was lucky to take this one," Manager Art Ross of the Bruins declared. "For all the fact they won cleanly, we poured power on them all night."

Goalie Turk Broda threw back the charging Bruins at the net time after time, particularly in the extra minutes when Bingo Kampman served a minor penalty. Captain Red Horner, after incurring two first-period penalties that left his teammates back on their heels, rallied the forces with a stellar game. He dropped Milt Schmidt to the ice in the third period with a body-check that left the Bruin centre's shoulder badly bruised today.

A crowd of 17,000 persons in the Garden saw a game in direct contrast to the opener, when slow ice and cautious play dulled the action. This time the going was fast and both teams set out to score early.

TWO GOAL LEAD

The Leafs got the jump with two quick goals just before the halfway mark, while Mel Hill, pinch-hitting star of Bruins' semifinal games with New York Rangers, was serving a penalty. Chamberlain got the first and Syl Apps the second. By assisting in both, Gordon Drillon set a new record for point-making in playoffs with seven goals and six assists for a total of 13 points.

Hill tied the score in the second when Bruins put four forwards and the evergreen Eddie Shore on the attack. Bill Cowley assisted Roy Conacher in the first goal and a minute later laid down a pass that Hill converted into the equalizer.

There were no penalties in the second period and only one in the third, to Jack Crawford of the Bruins. While Crawford was off, Toronto failed to get a shot on goal and the Bruin pressure increased until it seemed certain the Leafs must yield.

As the overtime opened Kampman was penalized for hooking. Down swept the Bruins and Broda began one of the high spots prizes.

barked on the Seattle boat yesterday afternoon and today were well on their way down the Pacific Coast.

A large crowd of friends and enthusiasts were on hand at the C.P.R. wharf to wish the husky crew of pigskin warriors good luck on their tour. The traveling unit will be pitted against California university fifteens and they will make their opening bid to carry B.C.'s colors through to the championship throne on Wednesday afternoon against University of California.

The Vancouver players were met at the docks yesterday morning by the Victoria players and officials and after breakfast together were put through a rigorous two-hour training session at Macdonald Park.

This was the team's first workout together. Attired in their new all-white togas with a crest identifying them as the "British Columbia 15 of 1939," the boys all looked in fine condition.

The team displayed speed in all departments and despite the fact they hadn't worked together before they seemed to fit into their positions quite well after a few turns up and down the pitches.

The team will arrive in San Francisco early tomorrow morning and will hold another workout.

First game will be played Wednesday, starting at 3. It is expected the games will be broadcast over station KVA San Francisco. On April 15 the Canadians will meet Stanford University, on April 22, University of San Francisco and on April 25 an all-star university fifteen.

Dominoes Defeated

Drop 46 to 38 Decision to Washington
Grads in Exhibition Basketball

The Dominoes weren't in the picture Saturday night when the University of Washington Grads chalked up a 46 to 38 win in exhibition basketball at the High School gym.

Although they weren't taking any chances at having any of the players injured prior to the Western Canadian Championship series which starts at the Willows Wednesday evening against Winnipeg, the local players never did hit their stride during the game.

The Washington squad was one of the snappiest neighboring cage squads that have hit town for a long time. They pulled some brilliant plays throughout the game and never were really threatened.

They went right in at the starting whistle, and ran up a lead of 7 to 0 in four and a quarter minutes. Dominoes looked poor. Then at the five and a half minute mark, Hank Rowe, who was high man for the locals with 15 points, started the ball rolling. At the end of the first quarter the locals had managed to catch up, still in arrears nevertheless, 9 to 6.

SCORE TIED 13 TO 13.

With a long crisp shot by Voelker, Washington forward early in the second quarter, the score mounted to 11 to 6. Art Chapman came back to make it 11 to 8 and brother Chuck made his appearance making it 11 to 10. Then Lockhart, high man for the Grads with 12 points, sank a shot. At the seven minute mark Rowe was fouled on a basket, and with one successful attempt from the strip had brought the Dominoes up on even terms, 13 to 13. That was the last time the Dominoes were in the picture. Seattle went in fighting hard, and by the half led 23 to 15.

With five minutes gone in the third period, the Grads had made it 30 to 15, but Dominoes baskets (Rowe, Jackson, Art and Chuck Chapman) in the minutes that followed brought the locals up within seven points at the end of the quarter, the score reading 34 to 27.

With two minutes gone in the final quarter the Dominoes had come within five points of the Grads 36 chalk marks, but they never came that close again after Ziegenfuss, smart-working visiting guard, sank his fourth basket, making it 38 to 31. And so it went with the final score reading, Washington 46 Victoria 38.

Rowe's 15 points were mainly foul shots. He sank nine foul out of 14 attempts. Art Chapman was second best for the Dominoes with 12 points, all of which were field baskets except the odd one.

The Grads' individual scores were evenly distributed. Lockhart hit the tape first with 12.

The crowd at the game was the smallest seen this season for an international exhibition. Despite the few fans on hand, there was a great deal of the usual hysterics, though.

In a preliminary game Bees defeated Buckles, 33 to 28.

Teams and individual scores follow:

Marine Drive Gets Tourney

Awarded 1940 B.C. Amateur Golf Championship; G. Norgan President

Following lengthy discussion at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Golf Association last night, the dates of the next men's amateur championship tournament will be decided by directors of the association and the Marine Drive Golf Club, Vancouver. Delegates from the Marine Drive club stated their directors were not in favor of abandoning their Good Friday tournament, which draws nearly 200 entries, yet desired to hold the annual fixture of the association on that course.

Victoria and some Vancouver delegates held out for the Easter-tourney and objected to what was termed a "floating" date. Good Friday to Easter Monday was ideal for a four-day tourney, they maintained.

Royal Colwood was chosen for the 1941 fixture.

Jericho agreed to hold the 1940 British Columbia Seniors' tournament.

W. S. Charlton, Point Grey, Vancouver, junior star, was eliminated in the first round of the Ontario invitation indoor tennis championships here at the week-end. He was beaten in straight sets by V. Havlicek of Toronto, 6-3, 6-4. Havlicek dropped his second round match to Don McDiarmid of Ottawa, 6-4, 6-4.

Bill Pedlar Beaten

TORONTO (AP)—Bill Pedlar, Vancouver, junior star, was eliminated in the first round of the Ontario invitation indoor tennis championships here at the week-end.

He was beaten in straight sets by V. Havlicek of Toronto, 6-3, 6-4. Havlicek dropped his second round match to Don McDiarmid of Ottawa, 6-4, 6-4.

The meeting adopted a motion requesting the event once in seven years and 80 per cent of expenses of the B.C. team sent east to compete for the trophy.

In presenting his report, President A. S. G. Musgrave, Victoria Golf Club, stated the 34 delegates present was the largest gathering in the history of the organization. Nearly every club in the province, with roughly 10,000 members was represented. Over $300 had been spent in prizes, and the large number of entries from Vancouver was highly encouraging.

Secretary Joe Howat reported cash on hand as $927. Three new clubs affiliated during the year and one had withdrawn.

The following officers were elected: President, George Norgan, Marine Drive; vice-president, A. B. Christopher, Royal Colwood; secretary, Jow Howat, Point Grey (re-elected); assistant secretary, A. V. Price, Victoria (re-elected); directors, Ron Hopkins, Jericho; Bob Dickinson, Quilchena; Dr. E. Jones, Vancouver G. and C. Club; Dave Hurdle, Gorge Vale, Victoria; J. R. McIlraith, Uplands, Victoria, and Mr. P. Margeson, Nanaimo.

W. L. Waldie, Point Grey, declined re-election as director.

W. S. Charlton, Point Grey, was re-elected B.C. representative to the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

Tolmies Take Second Trophy

Suburban Soccer Eleven Beats Conservatives 6 to 2 In Joshua Smith Cup Final

Mount Tolmie footballers captured their second trophy of the season in Merchants' Football League competition Saturday afternoon when they took the measure of Young Conservatives, 6 to 2, at Heywood Avenue, in the Joshua Smith Cup final.

The redshirts fully deserved victory on their performance.

Conservatives put up a stubborn battle for the honors and were in there fighting to the finish. Hayward tallied the first marker for the Tolmies before the game was 10 minutes old and Bird brought the Conservatives level at the 20-minute mark. From then on it was more or less Tolmie's game.

Duncan and Ted Minnis adding a point apiece, while McSweeney scored into his own goal to make the half-time score read 4 to 1 for the suburban eleven.

A smart centre-forward play resulted in Minnis notching his second tally of the game in the second half, which saw Duncan boost Mt. Tolmie another notch and Hudlin notch for Conservatives before it ended.

Mount Tolmie team was the more polished, all members of this team striving for goals to the last minute.

Sudden-death Hockey Series

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Goodyears beat Montreal Royals to even the eastern Canada senior hockey finals here Saturday night. The saw-off of the five-game series is slated for tonight at Montreal, the winner taking on Port Arthur Bearcats for the Allan Cup.

Royals, on the short end of a 2 to 0 score, emerged on the long end of the casualty list. Carl Gamble and Buddy O'Connor, both classy centres, were forced out in the second period with injuries.

Gamble, who dislocated his shoulder in the first period, broke his leg in the second and is through for the season. O'Connor hurt his shoulder but is expected to play tonight.

Goodyears dealt out two quick jolts to take the decision. Early in the third period Don Metz and Peanuts O'Flaherty scored within less than a minute and the Toronto team played safe thereafter. Nearly 9,000 fans watched the struggle.

Gamble broke his leg following a rink-long dash. He was about to round the defence when Robinson poked at the puck. Gamble lost balance and hurtled into the corner boards. A mixup with Blondy Sutcliffe near the boards brought O'Connor his injury. The lighter Royal player was flung backward, landing with a thud on the ice.

Angels Lead Coast League

Los Angeles Takes Double Header From Last-place Sacramento

Those Los Angeles hovered atop the Pacific Coast League standings today, leaving Sacramento's and Senators at the foot of the heap with something of a record in not having won a single baseball game in 10 starts.

The Sacramento case took on record proportions as the Solons took a double Easter drubbing. Los Angeles swept the seven-game series by winning 10 to 2 and 8 to 4. Sacramento had dropped three games to Portland as the season opened.

This week Sacramento will be up against the not-so-dull Hollywood Stars, who have lost four out of 10 and are fresh from winning the seven-game series with Portland, four games to three.

Portland beat Hollywood twice at the Stars' lot, 8 to 5 and 12 to 8.

The teams share second place in the standings at six wins and four losses.

At San Diego, the home town Padres whacked out double 5 to 4 and 5 to 1 triumphs over Seattle to win the series at four and three.

Oakland routed the San Francisco Seals in the opener, at Oakland 8 to 1, as Ben Cantwell pitched four-hit ball, but worked hard for victory in the nightcap, pulling out a 9 to 8 win.

Kenny Black 4 Up

Vancouver Golfer Takes Big Lead On Ted Colgate, Colwood, in B.C. Golf Final

Ken Black, Capilano, twice winner of the British Columbia men's amateur golf title, finished the first 18 holes of his 36-hole final match with Ted Colgate, Colwood, 4 up, at Oak Bay today.

Colgate took the lead on the first hole, making a five-foot putt for a four while Black took five. Black squared the match on the second when Colgate drove over the green 40 feet from the pin and took four to get down to Black's three. The third was halved in fives. Colgate's second shot caught a trap to the left while Black was off to the right. Ted was well on in three. Black got a break when his third went over and uphill but rolled back 15 feet from the pin. Colgate's fourth rimmed the cup.

Colgate took the lead again on the fourth with a four, while Black two-putted for a five. Kenny squared matters again at the fifth with a four to Colgate's five and went into the lead on the sixth with another four while his opponent needed five. Black made it 2 up at the seventh when Colgate's drive landed on the beach out of bounds and he had to play a second. He got a four to Black's three. The eighth and ninth were halved in threes and the 10th in fours.

Colgate won the 11th when Black put his drive out of bounds and his second up against the fence. Colgate was down in four to Black's six.

TWO UP AGAIN

Black went 2 up again at the 12th with a five to Colgate's six, and added another hole at the 13th when the Colwood player's drive went into the bushes to the right of the green. Colgate won the 14th with a par three to Black's four. Black went 3 up again at the 15th when Colgate drove into the trees. He was well out with his second, put his third to the right, fourth over the green and fifth four inches from the second pin. He was down in six to Black's three. Black made it 4 up at the 16th with another birdie three, sinking a 15-foot putt. The 17th was halved in fives and the 18th in fours.

Jimmy Robertson, Marine Drive, won the playoff for medalist honors with Freddy Painter, Gorge Vale, today. Both had 146 on Friday. They finished the extra round today with 73 and required two extra holes, Robertson winning on the 20th with a three.

In the final of the first flight Art Christopher, Colwood, defeated A. S. G. Musgrave, Oak Bay, 6 and 5.

The city fire department yesterday attended a roof fire at 1441 Gladstone Avenue and a grass fire at Pembroke and Douglas Streets.

Five Break-ins Over Holiday

Watches and Jewelry Taken From James Bay Home

Thieves busy around the city over the holiday week-end entered a James Bay home and four city premises but were successful in getting loot from the residence alone.

Two wrist watches, a $1 bill and a bracelet with ear-rings to match were stolen from the home of A. E. Appleton, 562 Toronto Street, during Mr. Appleton's absence last night. A pass key used on the back door gave entrance to the premises.

Other premises entered were the Crystal Spring factory on Richardson Street, the Layritz Nurseries store, 750 Fort Street, E. H. Harris' Bicycle Shop, 738 Fort Street, and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company office in the Union Building.

With the exception of the last named the break-ins of the other three premises were found by city officers doing their nightly rounds. Constable J. D. Blackstock found the Crystal Spring entered and Constable Louis Callan the Layritz and Harris stores. In Mr. Harris' shop the safe handle was knocked off and a few coppers were removed from the till. No other losses were reported.

U.S. of Europe Seen Inevitable

Big London Capitalist Says Hitler a Genius; Baldwin Gets Blame

NEW YORK—A letter from a "British capitalist of the highest importance," printed in the Wall Street Journal today, says:

"The position in Europe is now becoming defined. 'Hitler is undoubtedly a political genius. His plans more or less outlined in his book and the disregard for truth and treaties which he said should be employed is shown in operation. His policy has been absolutely consistent. The whole position is a practical demonstration of the lack of good governments in the world.'

"This country and the rest of Europe interested can with absolute justice blame former Minister Baldwin's policies for the present situation. Hitler's first coup was the remilitarization of the Rhineland and France wanted to march in and drive out the German troops sent there. We are told that the German officers had orders to retire immediately without resistance if the French army had done so. But we are also told that the British cabinet would not agree. The Baldwin policies were continued too long and there was a great delay in building up the air force in this country. It looks to me as if London itself would be in a very bad position if a large number of bombers were able to get through.

"Personally, I think that we should have a change in the British cabinet to make it more forceful immediately by the removal of Mr. Baldwin's pets and substituting for them men of different types.

"From a philosophical point of view, the fundamental movement is toward the formation of a United States of Europe, which the great improvements in the means of communications seem to me to make inevitable, and the struggle is whether such an aggregation of states would be dominated by military methods or with freedom as we know in this country, the United States and France.

"The question really is whether or not the world is to be dominated by militarism. Of course, it is impossible to do any 'new business over here until there is a complete change.'

Gayda Tells U.S. to Mind Own Business

ROME (AP)—Virginia Gayda, replying to criticism in the United States of Italy's seizure of Albania, told Americans today to "mind their own business."

Writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, Fascism's leading newspaper, she threatened that Italy and Germany otherwise would meddle in American affairs.

"Let them be content to handle their many and complex internal problems still pending," he wrote. "Let them not complain if, following this advice, they see European states, chosen as targets, finally for their own defence busying themselves with American things."

Labrador Parson Gets Broadcasting License

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Rev. Lester L. Barry of the United Church of Canada at Northwest River, Labrador has obtained a government broadcasting license and has increased the effectiveness of his ministry by spiritual and educational radio programs, according to a report of Rev. H. Maxwell Dawe, superintendent of home missions for the Newfoundland Conference of the United Church of Canada, presented to the annual meeting of the Home Mission Board, and trappers going into the woods for the winter were supplied with radios constructed by Mr. Barry.

The codfishery in Newfoundland during 1938 was larger than the previous year by 177,000 quintals but, due to decline in prices, the catch was worth less to the fishermen.

Building an Ocean Liner

1—CHANGES IN BOATS

When we ride on an ocean liner, we are filled with wonder over the work of men. The vessel is so large and powerful, and men are so small compared with it, that we may be puzzled as to how it ever could have been put together.

A single dining-room on a liner may be large enough to hold two or three dozen railway locomotives. Yet the dining room is only one of many parts.

Scene at laying of keel of Ss. Olympic.

What a change from the old days when Stone Age men made boats! They used to trim branches from fallen trees, and then would hollow out the trunk, or part of the trunk.

With stone axes and with fire, they made the so-called "dugout canoes." In Switzerland I saw two or three of these canoes in a museum. They were made thousands of years ago by Swiss Lake Dwellers. Certain tribes in Africa today make boats of much the same kind.

One trouble with the dugout canoe was the fact it would turn over easily. People riding in it had to be careful not to move to one side or the other. To get around this worry, inventors put on keels.

Running along the bottom of a boat, from stem to stern, the keel helps to keep it from tipping. A deep keel is a strong guard against tipping, but there are reasons not to use it on many kinds of boats.

If a rowboat, for example, had a deep keel, it would be hard to handle when drawn ashore. An ocean steamer must enter harbors where the water is not very deep, and that is one reason why keels on such boats are not large.

Through the centuries, men have tested vessels, and have learned what kind of keels will answer the needs of safety. The shape of the hull has a great deal to do with making a ship steady.

So far as being deep goes, the central keel of a liner does not amount to much nowadays. In fact, many vessels have "flat keels." Yet the keel still is important. It serves as a kind of backbone. To it are fastened the "ribs" which rise along the sides of the hull.

The first step in building an ocean liner is to lay the keel blocks. These are oblong pieces of wood, often a foot square and from four to six feet long. They are laid in lines running from the stem to the stern of the vessel which is to come into being. Then the keel itself (commonly of steel nowadays) is laid.

HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, April 11, 1939

Benefic aspects of extraordinary promise are seen for today, but strong adverse planetary influences are active, according to astrology. Conflicts between employers and employees may be numerous in the morning hours.

Men and women who exercise authority may be inclined towards arrogance and independence. It is not a favorable day for offering good counsel.

Women today should be extraordinarily lucky if they are self-sufficient and able to manage their own affairs. They should have good judgment and clear vision in preparing for the future.

This is an auspicious date for starting on long journeys. Ocean voyages should be successful whether they are undertaken for business or recreation.

In the coming summer astrologers forecast extensive travel. Tours from east to west and from west to east will break all records. The stars appear to prestage extraordinary patronage for both the New York and the San Francisco expositions.

As crises in international relations are met, achievements in invention and manufacturing as well as in education and the arts will become symbols of peacetime attainment long to be remembered.

The evening of this day is most promising to leaders of thought and should be fortunate for public speakers. Theatres also will profit.

Persons whose birthday it is have the augury of a year of enjoyable experiences. Strangers

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 26. Have been married for four years to a girl who has every good quality a man could expect from his wife, and I know I love her deeply. I am a clerk in a large office and my wife works as a stenographer in another office. Between us we make enough to keep a car and live comfortably. About two years ago a young girl came to work in our office and from the first she attracted me. I helped her with her work and gradually we became very friendly and intimate, although I told her I was married. Now she seems to have come to her senses and refuses to go out with me. I know she is right, but I am crazy about her. She has a strong physical attraction for me, yet I don't know whether I am in love with her or not. How can I stop thinking about her? What, if anything, should I say to my wife, whom I worship?

HARRY.

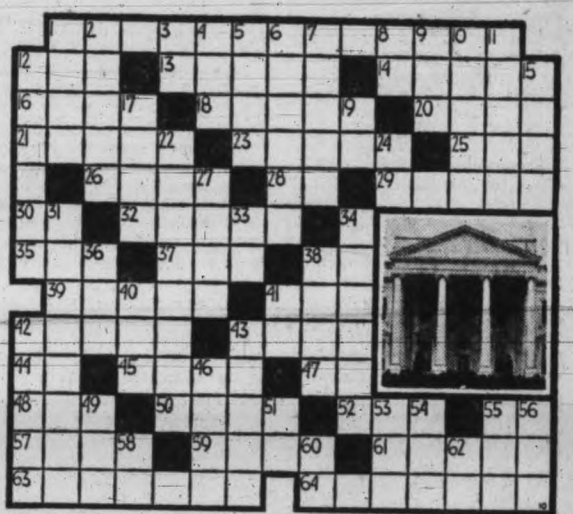

Answer: If you worship your wife, you have certainly taken a queer way of showing it, and no doubt she could do with a little less lip service and a trifle more loyalty.

One of the strangest and most pitiful things about human beings is the unaccountable way they go out and hunt up trouble for themselves. Now here you were, sitting on the top of the world, a lovely young wife—virtually a bride—whom you say you love. She was a helpmate to you, working to assist you in getting on your feet. You had a good job, a nice car, a home, comfort, all the makings of a happy and successful life.

Then comes along a girl who, if left alone, would stay decent and clean and support herself honestly. In the end she probably would marry some nice young chap in the office. But you can't let her go her way and you go your way in peace. You are a married man. Your attentions are bound to compromise the girl, and get you into a mess with your wife if she ever hears of them. But you have to start up an affair with this girl that is pretty sure to be the ruin of you both.

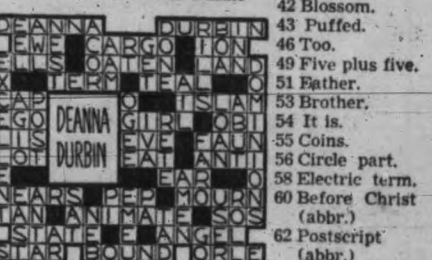

DOROTHY DIX.

Roamers Set For Opener

Memorial Cup Hockey Finals Scheduled to Start Tonight

TORONTO (CP)—Intent on retaining the Memorial Cup for western Canada, Edmonton Roamers held a brief workout today while Toronto fans endeavored to determine hurriedly how the young Albertans compare with Oshawa Generals, highly-rated eastern junior hockey champions.

The two teams open a best-of-five game series for the Dominion title which has rested in the west for the last 19 years, here tonight. The Generals will be bidding for the trophy for the second successive time, having bowed to St. Boniface Seals in the junior classic last season.

In 20 years of competition, the west has won the cup 11 times, but an Edmonton club has never been successful. A triumph for the Generals also would place Oshawa on the championship list for the first time. There was plenty of backing for both teams and early betting was at even money.

The Roamers, with 19 players, arrived here yesterday.

In junior and intermediate competition, they won 33, last six and tied three games, while Oshawa won 23 and lost three. Edmonton scored 310 goals against 80, and the Generals totaled 131 against 47. In 12 playoff contests, Edmonton won 11 and scored 81 goals, while holding the opposition to 15. In the same number of playoffs tests the Generals won 10, scored 43 goals and yielded 20.

Letters to the Editor

WANTED: A FLAGPOLE

To the Editor:—In connection with the visit of Their Majesties the King and Queen during the month of May the Board of Managers believe it would be a nice thing if we had a flagstaff erected in the grounds of the B.C. Protestant Orphans' Home and were wondering if a charitably disposed citizen would feel inclined to make a gift of a pole that might stand 50 or 60 feet above the ground. As the Home is supported entirely by voluntary subscriptions, bequests and a few maintenance fees for some of the children, the Orphanage is naturally not over-burdened with funds to be used for such a purpose as this. However, we do feel we would like, if possible, to have a flag of the country fluttering in the breezes daily as one means of teaching patriotism to the youngsters in our charge.

If anybody so disposed to make this gift would get in touch with the secretary at his office, 734 Broughton Street, or telephone Empire 3614, arrangements would be made for its erection.

REGINALD HAYWARD,
Hon. Secretary, B.C. Protestant Orphans' Home.

WHO IS WINNING?

To the Editor:—So "Japan has won the war." Reporter Gordon Sinclair of the Toronto Daily Star states it confidently, but was too busy to answer his eager listeners when they asked him, "When?" and "How?"

On the contrary, I think the Sino-Japanese conflict is not even at the climax, because:

1. China's major supply routes are still guarded soundly, despite all the Japanese efforts to break them by force or by propaganda.

2. By the map, Japan's legions have only been able to occupy less than one-fifth of the Chinese republic.

3. All peace rumors have been denied by the Chinese government at Chungking.

4. Chinese moral is still higher than ever.

5. China is now united solidly behind the central government and has resolved to fight as long as she can, that is, unless Japan decides to sue for peace.

6. And it is only too obvious that China, with all her millions, may be training a new war machine at her back doors (the rich provinces of Szechwan, Kiangsi and Chinghai) for that last, big surprise.

Then Japan certainly has not won the war at all. Her financial position is none too good, and she is gradually running out of manpower. The deeper she ventures into the interior of China, the more precarious her position. She relies mostly on her trade to carry on the war. Her propaganda is becoming too monotonous and unreasonable.

I rather think China will be the victor in the end. The democracies are helping her more and more, by supplying war materials and finances to her. But why not double the help, that by boycotting Japan's goods, and embargoing war supplies to her (Japan)? Then at least one nation will have beaten her aggressor, who is one of the three menaces of the world today.

K. LOWE,
559 1/2 Cormorant Street.

BEVERLEY BAXTER

To the Editor:—You quote from the Winnipeg Free Press an example of Mr. Beverley Baxter's "ripe understanding" of world affairs. He is evidently one of the worshippers of the Chamberlain policy through thick and thin.

Another striking specimen of bias and blunders appears in a recent excerpt, in which he is represented as capitalizing on false sentiment in connection with the Rome visit in January.

He describes the Italian women with tears running down their faces, lifting their hands and blessing the smiling gentle figure in black with an umbrella. He is apparently oblivious of the real facts, that at the very moment the "slender black figure" was the flattered guest of Mussolini, the husbands and sons of these Italian women were busy killing Spanish babies.

Italian children were safe enough and Italian women had not yet anything to cry for. The Spanish women had. They were then actually seeing—and for two and a half years had been seeing—their children killed or mutilated before their eyes.

Hitler and Mussolini, Franco too, discriminate. Spaniards are vermin, while the Italian and German bombers and machine-guns, the killers, are supermen.

On no other hypothesis could Beverley Baxter's highly colored account of the scenes in Rome be justified.

It seems Canadians may congratulate themselves that these preposterous broadcasts from London are now a thing of the past. What we need, and badly, is a really reliable, informed and impartial commentator on world affairs. And that Canada still lacks.

W. D. MUNRO,
2855 Colquitz Avenue.

STREET CAR VOTE

To the Editor:—Property owners mostly have cars, why should we vote to do away with street cars. They are assuredly the safest, healthiest and most economical form of transportation for those that use them.

The money spent on street car fares is kept in the province and not sent away for buses and gas. The dome roofs of street cars prevent that festering state, from so many breathing when fully loaded and there is no continual fumes in the streets from exhaust discharges.

One out of every 13 barrels of gas in the world produced today is used for military and naval purposes and our own papers have advertisements in them advising people to buy Turner Valley oil shares, with the expectation of big profits if war comes. The fall of Barcelona shows all the storage tanks on fire, one of the first things the planes make for. We should not vote for anything like this, but public ownership of either.

A bond to supply this city 70 or 80 buses no doubt could be raised, with the assistance of some manufacturer; but our greatest bond is a 6-cent fare for the people that is not subject to fluctuation from such causes, or war dangers.

J. MILLARD,
3107 Shelbourne Street.

THAT STREET CAR VOTE

To the Editor:—On the night of the election after the returns were in Mayor McGavin, in his speech to the electors, declared that the people having expressed their views on the arena and street car question, he would do his part to see their wishes carried out. What then has happened since that a vote has again to be taken, this time of ratepayers only and three-fifths majority necessary? As far as I can understand there is no question of money involved to the ratepayers under the street car system and any expense would be borne by the B.C.E.R. But if the system should change, there might be something for the ratepayers to face directly and non-ratepayers indirectly. The public is beginning to wonder what is at the back of all this juggling and is it the hope that a three-fifths majority cannot carry and the way paved for the people who are running, to my mind, a very misleading advertisement in the paper? With no money involved why is a three-fifths majority any more necessary than voting for mayor. At the prevailing scale of wages the people in that class are chiefly concerned with cost of transportation and are skeptical of any guarantee, that under a bus system 6-cent fares, transfers and weekly passes, would be like the Munich pact, worth the paper it was written on.

LAWRENCE SAMSON,
56 South Turner Street.

Ready to Bid On Bus System

H. Husband Announces Decision to Seek City Transportation Contract

Definite announcement of his intention to present a bid, "if the opportunity offers," on a system of bus transportation for Victoria was made by Harold Husband, general manager of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, today.

His statement was made on behalf of himself and his associates.

"We are sympathetic towards the claims and needs of the Victoria Street Railwaymen's Association," Mr. Husband stated, "but inasmuch as it is generally understood that the B.C. Electric Railway Company do not intend to continue the streetcar operation under a long-term franchise, I believe that the long period of usefulness of the rail streetcar in Victoria is at an end, and that the modern deluxe motorpowered bus is the ultimate answer to this city's problems.

"A careful study of the local transportation situation has been completed," he said. He referred to his recent trips to Eastern Canada and the United States, where he had conferred with transportation experts and heads of the larger operating companies. Transportation engineers from the East had been brought to Victoria, and an intensive survey had been made of the requirements of the city and adjoining municipalities.

"Opinion had been unanimous among experienced transportation men that Victoria was especially adaptable to bus operation, and that all its districts would be better served by this newest transportation medium."

Mr. Husband stated that it would be quite feasible to route all lines through the business districts along the same routes as are now being covered by the streetcars if so required.

"From the findings of this survey, a carefully considered plan for the complete and efficient coverage of all the districts in the City of Greater Victoria has been worked out, and should streets transportation tenders be called, we are prepared to submit a plan on this basis," Mr. Husband said.

Mr. Husband has been the general manager of the local bus company from the early years of its inception, over 10 years ago.

Since then it has developed into a comprehensive bus system covering Victoria and Saanich and all the communities on the highways of Vancouver Island—a bus operation of a magnitude not exceeded anywhere in Canada.

Prairie People Vacation Here

People of the prairie provinces, leaving behind for a few days their usual uncertain weather of early April, came to Victoria for Easter Saturday and could hardly believe their eyes when they saw daffodils and tulips and hyacinths blooming in the gardens of the city.

Excursion rates from the prairie to the Pacific Coast brought more than 1,000 persons to Vancouver on Thursday and Friday. Many came to Victoria to spend the week-end. A large crowd were among the excursionists here from Vancouver for the day yesterday.

Many Seattle and Portland people also came here for the long holiday week-end.

GANNER—CRAIG

On Saturday evening in the First United Church, Rev. Hugh McLeod united in marriage Ann, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Craig, Edmonton, and Mr. George C. Ganner, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ganner, Whittaker Street, Victoria.

An old friend of her family, Mr. E. H. McDonald, gave the bride in marriage. She wore a frock of white tulle, fashioned with a short train, long sleeves, and a bodice embroidered with seed pearls in front. A hip-length veil fell from a Juliet cap of orange blossoms and brocade ribbon, and she carried an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

Miss Opal Unsel, the bridesmaid, wore a frock of robin's egg blue net over tulle, trimmed with bows of blue velvet and worn with a short bolero, long matching mesh gloves and a pink floral doll hat from which fell a blue shoulder veil. She carried a sheaf of pink carnations. Mr. Dick Martin was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Gilbert Lucas and Mr. Maurice Ball.

Mr. G. H. Peaker presided at the organ. Miss Iris Smith sang "Because" as the register was being signed.

A reception was held after the service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Martin, Balmoral Road, friends of the bridegroom's family, where quantities of daffodils, tulips, carnations and pink and white streamers had been effectively arranged. The bride and groom stood beneath an archway studded with pink and white rose petals and a white bell surmounted with a cluster of roses. The bride's cake stood on a round table covered with a lace cloth, between vases of flowers. Mrs. Ganner, in a frock of Marina blue crepe with a corsage bouquet of roses and navy and white accessories, was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Martin and Mrs. E. H. McDonald.

After a short honeymoon trip to Vancouver, from where they will motor to Seattle, Mr. and Mrs. Ganner will take up residence in the Normandie Apartments. The bride went away in a smart outfit in the new japonica shade adorned with a corsage bouquet of roses and a small matching hat and veil.

Miss Dorothy Ganner, Vancouver, was a guest at the wedding, and is spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Ganner.

Among the many wedding gifts was a case of flat silver from Mr. Clifford Collision, manager of Collision's, where the groom is employed.
